Death And Starvation Trails Storm In Middlewest

BELOW ZERO WEATHER IS PREVAILING

Thousands in Chicago Are Suffering and Flock to Church for Warmth

COLD WAVE COMING

Temperatures From 10 to 20 Degrees in Minnesota and Iowa in Night

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—(UP)—Windy winds howled today into hamlets and hovel, singing their dirge of starvation and doom.

Death trailed the second major onslaught of icy temperatures and chilling blasts on the central states. Some died of exposure; others met death on glass-slick pavements; others died in gas filled rooms as fires were stoked furiously to keep out the cold.

In Chicago, the cold came in puzzling waves. Thousands of homeless suffered in the first swoop of sub zero winds out of the northwest. Shivering, the homeless fled to churches, police stations, relief shelters and public buildings.

Over the central states, scenes of suffering were commonplace. In smaller places, families clustered about stoves for which there was no fuel.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel said that a new cold wave is coming. A lull in the first wave brought false cheer to the 17,000 homeless in Chicago and the other thousands similarly destitute in the mid-continent states.

The winter, so far deceptively mild, closed in with sudden ferocity. Temperatures fell 10 to 20 degrees. Many localities in Minnesota and Iowa registered readings from 10 to 15 degrees below zero.

Long Beach was chosen as the site of the 1934 convention.

Other officers elected were: C. C. Adams, Berkeley, and William Dunkerly, Pasadena, vice presidents; A. G. Lansing Hurd, Santa Rosa, secretary-treasurer.

Directors of the advisory council chosen were A. L. Olinger, Long Beach; Mrs. Virginia Vanosdell, Exeter; A. A. McMullen, Yuba City; J. M. Silvey, San Jose; Mrs. E. B. Thornburn, Watsonville, and Adolph Young, Petaluma.

REPORT 10 KILLED IN FRENCH BLAST

PARIS, Feb. 6.—(UP)—An explosion in the electric plant of the Renault automobile works at Billancourt was reported today to have killed 10 men.

Minister of the Interior Camille Chautemps hurried to the plant to supervise first aid.

The ministry of the interior said eight bodies had been recovered. Officials of the Renault company estimated that at least 30 men were injured.

THREE GUESSES

Start of Work On Bridge Delights Gulls

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—(UP)—Start of work on the new $35,000,000 Golden Gate bridge today was acclaimed with delight by several thousand sea gulls.

Every time it is necessary to blast away rock during excavation for the anchorage sites, hundreds of aemlets and herrings rise stunned to the surface of the bay.

With shrill cries and flapping of wings, John C. Gull and his feathered cronies fall avidly to the feast.

"This is a better racket than following the ferry boats," said the sage Mr. Gull.

FEAR VIOLENCE AT TAX SALES IN IOWA TOWN

Little Relief Is Expected From Congress Until After Next Month

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—(UP)—Discontent stirred the ranks of the mortgaged today while law-making bodies considered emergency relief measures with sympathy but without concrete action.

Threats of violence accompanied preparations for tax sales at New Hampton and Grundy Center, Iowa. Leaders declared the gathering farmers were ready to take whatever action necessary to protect their neighbors' property from the auctioneer's hammer.

Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers Holiday association, was hopeful the change of administration next month would be followed by a measure of relief. He was silent on the farmers' plans for the future if help does not materialize.

As the farm unrest spread to urban centers where the total mortgage burden is heavier even than on the farm, congress worked feverishly to reach an agreement on some sort of relief measure before adjournment. As the session waned the banking committee of the senate was discouraged at the possibility of reaching agreement on any of the measures before it and considered scrapping them all to make way for a compromise bill incorporating the best features of each.

The almost unparalleled debt situation, brought about by the change in money values since debts were contracted, has frozen the wheels of banking and thereby impaired commerce in general. Scores of banks in the mid-west were open only after complete business moratoria in their territory permitted them time to secure waivers on their deposits.

The moratorium idea extended southward over the week-end to Louisiana where Governor O. K. Allen declared a legal holiday throughout the state Saturday to permit officials of the $64,000,000 Nibner Bank & Trust company to negotiate for a $20,000,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

As an outgrowth of the general unrest milk prices were waged in several sections. Three men were wounded, one critically, in such a dispute near Sioux City, Ia. In Wisconsin the state department of agriculture issued an order fixing milk prices in an effort to forestall violence there.

LETTER OF APOLOGY SENT TO JAPANESE

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Feb. 6.—(UP)—Passengers aboard the Dollar liner President Jefferson, an American vessel, were not permitted to land here until the U. S. consulate sent a letter of apology to Japanese immigration officers for failure of a ship officer to recognize them.

The immigration officers were not in uniform when they started to board the liner upon its arrival here yesterday. A junior officer, believing them to be civilians, refused to permit them to come aboard. Angered, the Japanese returned to their launch.

A veteran employee of the ship recognized the Japanese and invited them to board the vessel. They refused and returned to shore. After hours of waiting, the ship docked but police refused to let anyone land.

CONGRESS PAYS COOLIDGE HIGH TRIBUTE TODAY

Joint Session of Solons Attended by President and Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(UP)—Congress in formal joint session today commemorated the life and public services of Calvin Coolidge, former president, who died last month.

President Hoover and the nation's high executive, judicial and military figures attended the solemn services in the house chamber.

They heard one of the president's close friends, Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg of the Massachusetts supreme court, eulogize him as "the incarnation of the ideal of the American of his day."

A male chorus from the interstate commerce commission sang two hymns, and the chaplains of the house and senate offered prayers.

President Hoover sat at the front of the chamber, flanked by his aides and members of the cabinet. Near-by were gathered the robed justices of the supreme court, the chief of staff of the army, the chief of naval operations, foreign ambassadors and ministers and members of the senate. Farther back in the chamber sat the members of the house. Mrs. Coolidge did not attend the rites.

Mr. Coolidge came to the presidency, Chief Justice Rugg said, at a time when the country after the upheaval of the war needed an opportunity to readjust itself.

"The people wanted to attend to their own affairs," he said. "They were reassured to know that in the office of president there was a man of rugged honesty, calmness, wisdom, who was reticent, modest, courageous, experienced, to whom no duty was trifling or obnoxious."

Detailed instructions were given by the kidnapers on where to leave the ransom.

Dr. Skeele was ordered to follow a certain route to Montecito drive and a winding road to the top of the hill. The money then was to be deposited in a box beneath a tile at the end of a retaining wall. The ransom was to be in $5, $10 and $20 bills.

Police have refused to reveal the full contents of the ransom note.

Mrs. Skeele was abducted late last night during the absence of Dr. Skeele, who was playing the organ in a nearby church.

A telephone call informed Mrs. Skeele that her husband was lying seriously injured in the North Side hospital, and that an automobile would be sent to take her there.

Mrs. Skeele then telephoned her son, who is assistant advertising manager for the Los Angeles Illustrated Daily News, telling him to meet her at the hospital.

"A car just drove up in front," Mrs. Skeele told her son. "They've come to take me to the hospital."

Skeele rushed to the hospital where he found no trace of his father nor his mother. Then he drove to the church where Dr. Skeele is organist each Sunday night.

Mystified by the strange situation, the two returned to Dr.

U. S. C. DEAN'S WIFE KIDNAPED SUNDAY NIGHT

Death Threatened Unless $10,000 in Ransom is Paid by Tonight

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—(UP)—Kidnapers of Mrs. Mary Skeele, 65-year-old wife of the dean of music at the University of Southern California, set 5:30 p. m. today as the deadline for payment of $10,000 ransom, according to police.

The officers refused to reveal the penalty attached for failure to meet the demand by that hour. Death, however, was threatened for Mrs. Skeele if police aid was sought.

Detailed instructions were given by the kidnapers on where to leave the ransom.

Dr. Skeele was ordered to follow a certain route to Montecito drive and a winding road to the top of the hill. The money then was to be deposited in a box beneath a tile at the end of a retaining wall. The ransom was to be in $5, $10 and $20 bills.

BATTLE FLEET NOW MOVING ON COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—(UP)—Playing the role of "attackers" in the navy's mock war games, a portion of the United States battle fleet was moving on the Pacific coast today.

Destroyers, cruisers and airplane carriers were advancing on the mainland coast after a theoretical victory over "defending" forces at Honolulu last week.

Although the mainland's "defense" armada under Admiral Luke McNamee greatly outnumbered the "attackers," the latter group held the advantage in that it may make the mimic attack at any point from the Panama Canal to Alaska. It may "attack" as a unit or operate over a wide front.

The mock attack on the Pacific coast, part of the navy's annual war maneuvers, will continue for 10 days.

HOUSE IS STRIPPED OF RICH FURNISHINGS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—(UP)—Discovery that thieves had looted the San Francisco home of Mrs. Lewis Balcom Reed, wife of a Chicago capitalist, of furnishings valued at $50,000 was made today.

The robbery was committed sometime between January 25 and yesterday. Mrs. Reed left here on the former date to join her husband in Chicago.

Ransacking the exclusive residence from basement to garret, the looters carried away antiques, furnishings, rugs, furs, jewelry, silverware and clothing. Sigmund Braverman, father of Mrs. Reed, discovered the robbery.

Although the house is flanked by other homes, none of the neighbors witnessed the robbery. Police said the loot would have required several moving vans to haul it away.

20TH AMENDMENT IN EFFECT TODAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(UP)—Secretary of State Stimson today officially proclaimed in effect the so-called "lame-duck" amendment to the constitution, changing the term of office of the president.

Stimson promulgated the amendment after receiving certificates of ratification from 39 states.

Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, "father of the lame duck amendment" was invited to attend the ceremonies, but could not be present because of congressional duties.

Legal experts of the state department explained that today's ceremonies had no effect on the legality of the amendment. They said it became effective a week or so ago on the ratification of the 38th state and cited a supreme court decision to uphold their view.

Solves Problem Of How To Rout Cooties

OAKDALE, Calif., Feb. 6.—(UP)—Hans Clemensen, Oakdale rancher, never did like cooties.

Some time ago, Clemensen said, the cooties moved into his home. They made his life miserable. They thrived and multiplied on the $30 worth of exterminator he bought and applied according to directions.

But, Clemensen chuckled, he had the last laugh.

He simply burned down his house—with the permission and assistance of the Oakdale fire department—and moved into his garage.

DEATH THREATENED UNLESS $10,000 IN RANSOM IS PAID BY TONIGHT

ENGLISH PILOTS ON TWO RECORD TRIPS

LYMPNE AIRDROME, Eng., Feb. 6.—(UP)—Two ambitious flights to distant parts of the world were started by British aviators today in search of new records and laurels for their country.

Captain James A. Mollison, who already has flown the Atlantic to the United States, started in a light plane on a round trip crossing of the north and south Atlantic. He planned to fly to Africa, across the South Atlantic to Argentina, northward to New York and back to England.

Two Royal Air force fliers left Cranwell airdrome shortly before Mollison, planning a non-stop flight to Capetown, which would break the American record held by Boardman-Polando for distance flight from New York to Istanbul.

MANCHURIAN STAND ON U. S. SUPPORTED

GENEVA, Feb. 6.—(UP)—The position of the United States on the Manchurian dispute was fully supported today by the committee of 19 of the league of nations assembly.

The committee stood behind Secretary Stimson's letter to Senator William E. Borah on Feb. 25, 1932, in which Stimson intimated Japan failed to observe the nine power and other treaties, and urged strong moral pressure by the nations against violators.

The basis for the league's recommendation against recognizing Manchukuo, therefore, will be the statement that "the present situation in Manchuria is not compatible with the Kellogg pact, the nine power treaty and the league covenant."

BRITISH VESSEL IN DISTRESS AT SEA

ASTORIA, Ore., Feb. 6.—(UP)—The British steamer Charles Wheeler Jr., of the McCormick line is standing by the British motorship Pacific Shipper, in distress with fire in her engine rooms, 20 miles off the Southern Oregon coast, the coast guard reported here today.

Several radio calls were received from the stricken vessel, but the exact extent of the fire was not learned.

Captain Henry Fairclough is in command of the vessel. She carried a crew of about 45 and while the vessel has accommodations for a few passengers, there were none aboard.

The Pacific Shipper left Portland Saturday enroute to San Francisco.

NEW ORLEANS BANK CRISIS IS AVERTED

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 6.—(UP)—New Orleans returned to normalcy today after an exciting week end bank crisis in which Senator Huey P. (Kingfish) Long cast himself in the role of hero.

Long participated in a series of hurried conferences that brought the promise of a $20,000,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the $54,000,000 Hibernia Bank & Trust Co., on which a run started last week.

"Yes sir, the Kingfish said today, "it's a good thing for the people of New Orleans that I was in town. I saved the day."

BARRY DEFENDS ASSERTIONS OF SOLON BRIBING

Suspended Office Holder Cites Similar Charge Made by Glass

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(UP)—David S. Barry, suspended sergeant-at-arms of the senate, today defended his assertions that some congressmen accept bribes by citing statements of two senators and allegations that local university students were taught that corruption in congress was general.

"If it is an offense to have said what I said in my article," Barry said in a prepared statement read to the committee, "then I am not alone guilty, for on the 10th of May, 1932, Senator Glass of Virginia, speaking on the subject of the opposition of certain banks to the proposed legislation in regard to branch banking, said:

Hired Lobbyist

"They hired a skilful and persuasive professional lobbyist and paid him a high salary to come here to Washington—worse than that, they hired some congressmen to my positive and documented knowledge—to oppose even that small measure of branch banking."

Barry's statement distributed to the press underscored the reference to hiring congressmen.

The witness was composed and emphatic in his statements in the crowded committee room.

Chairman Norris of the committee said Barry had requested to be permitted to make a statement.

Barry told the committee that in the "New Outlook" article he was "endeavoring to represent it as the true situation that the isolated case of the misconduct of individuals in public office no basis for the loose public condemnation of the senate as a whole."

Awaits Judgment

He said he would not resign but would await the judgment of the senate. The committee had before it a motion for his removal from office. The senate has agreed to vote on the motion tomorrow.

FIGURES ARE RELEASED AT ANNUAL MEET

Total of 3,289,000 Boxes of All Varieties Fruit Shipped From Here

RETURNS from aggregate shipments handled through the Orange County Fruit Exchange from its affiliated associations for the period from November 1, 1931, to October 31, 1932, were 3,289,031.2 boxes of all varieties of citrus fruits. The returns from shipments were $7,554,052.13 f.o.b. California, according to a report given today at the annual meeting of the exchange at the company offices on South Glassell street, Orange, by C. C. Hillis, manager of the association.

Included in these figures are 152,506 boxes of the 1931 Valencia crop which were forwarded in November, 1931, and consequently come within this season's operations. Of the 1932 crop Valencia, there was carried over into November of this year 193,215 boxes which will appear with the figures covering the season of 1932-33. In volume the shipments were 181,872.1-2 boxes more than those of last season, and the returns were $514,730.17 less. Most of the reduction in price can be attributed to the lower purchasing power of the country and lack of shipment control, although quality and percentages of grades exercised a considerable influence," said Hillis.

Valencia Crop

"In concluding his report, Hillis told of some of the factors having to do with prices realized for the Valencia crop now on the trees, and throughout the report he emphasized the importance of closer cooperation in marketing between growers of the district.

"The factors having to do with prices that will be realized for the Valencia crop now upon the trees present even a more uncertain aspect than they did last season," the manager declared "and there is no indication for an increased demand at higher prices, unemployment is only slightly relieved."

WITNESS IN YACHT MURDER IN CUSTODY

LONG BEACH, Feb. 6.—(UP)—After creating excitement in the courtroom by her failure to respond when she was called to the witness stand, Aloha Wandervell, the state's principal witness in the trial of William James Guy, accused of the murder of Walter Wandervell, appeared half an hour late today and was placed in technical custody.

Her failure to appear when the trial convened caused Superior Judge Robert Kenny to issue a bench warrant for her arrest, and had the state's prosecutors frankly worried, for upon Mrs. Wandervell's story of a long-harbored grudge of Guy against her husband, they based much of their hope for successful prosecution of the case.

MARRIAGES DECLINE IN STATE IN 1932

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 6.—(UP)—There were fewer marriages in California last year than at any time since 1919, the state department of public health announced today.

The total for 1932 was 43,164, or 4,357 below the 1931 figure.

Department officials blamed a combination of hard times and the three-day "gin marriage" law for the steady decrease during recent years.

Declares Senator Obtained $2500 for Securing Pardon Back in 1923

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Feb. 6.—(UP)—Charges that Sen. J. M. Inman, Sacramento, had engaged in a "pardon racket" and had allegedly sold his political influence to obtain pardons for convicts in state prisons were laid before the senate investigation committee today by Gov. James Rolph Jr.

The charges were filed by L. M. Golden, former deputy district attorney of San Francisco, and were preceded by a heated row between Inman, chairman of the committee, and Golden.

Finally they were accepted "conditionally" in order to permit their "inspection" by the committee before the charges were formally made a part of the record.

Three specific cases were cited by Governor Rolph as being ones in which Senator Inman was involved. They were:

Marco Albori, Los Angeles, convicted last year of assault with a deadly weapon, and sentenced to serve 14 years.

"Public officials should be extremely scrupulous to avoid even the appearance of selling political influence," Golden declared.

HOUSE TO VOTE ON CENSURING OF LOUDERBACK

Committee Submits Report But Votes Down Motion For Impeachment

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(UP)—The house judiciary committee which has been investigating the official conduct of Federal Judge Louderback of San Francisco today voted to submit a report to the house censuring his official conduct.

It voted against impeachment. The vote in favor of the censure motion was announced as 16 to 5. The vote against impeachment was likewise 19 to 5.

Committee Chairman Sumners said a report embodying the majority views would shortly be filed with the house. He said it would specifically criticize various transactions in Louderback's district court, but declined to reveal which cases had met with the disapproval of the congressional investigating group.

The minority report asking for impeachment will also be filed and a demand for Louderback's removal made on the floor of the house by Rep. Laguardia.

Investigation of Judge Louderback's handling of receivership cases in the San Francisco district court was recommended last July by the San Francisco Bar association.

He said it would specifically criticize various transactions in Louderback's district court, but declined to reveal which cases had met with the disapproval of the congressional investigating group.

The minority report asking for impeachment will also be filed and a demand for Louderback's removal made on the floor of the house by Rep. Laguardia.

Investigation of Judge Louderback's handling of receivership cases in the San Francisco district court was recommended last July by the San Francisco Bar association.

WITNESS IN YACHT MURDER IN CUSTODY

LONG BEACH, Feb. 6.—(UP)—After creating excitement in the courtroom by her failure to respond when she was called to the witness stand, Aloha Wandervell, the state's principal witness in the trial of William James Guy, accused of the murder of Walter Wandervell, appeared half an hour late today and was placed in technical custody.

Her failure to appear when the trial convened caused Superior Judge Robert Kenny to issue a bench warrant for her arrest, and had the state's prosecutors frankly worried, for upon Mrs. Wandervell's story of a long-harbored grudge of Guy against her husband, they based much of their hope for successful prosecution of the case.

MANCHURIAN STAND ON U. S. SUPPORTED

GENEVA, Feb. 6.—(UP)—The position of the United States on the Manchurian dispute was fully supported today by the committee of 19 of the league of nations assembly.

The committee stood behind Secretary Stimson's letter to Senator William E. Borah on Feb. 25, 1932, in which Stimson intimated Japan failed to observe the nine power and other treaties, and urged strong moral pressure by the nations against violators.

The basis for the league's recommendation against recognizing Manchukuo, therefore, will be the statement that "the present situation in Manchuria is not compatible with the Kellogg pact, the nine power treaty and the league covenant."

BRITISH VESSEL IN DISTRESS AT SEA

ASTORIA, Ore., Feb. 6.—(UP)—The British steamer Charles Wheeler Jr., of the McCormick line is standing by the British motorship Pacific Shipper, in distress with fire in her engine rooms, 20 miles off the Southern Oregon coast, the coast guard reported here today.

Several radio calls were received from the stricken vessel, but the exact extent of the fire was not learned.

Captain Henry Fairclough is in command of the vessel. She carried a crew of about 45 and while the vessel has accommodations for a few passengers, there were none aboard.

The Pacific Shipper left Portland Saturday enroute to San Francisco.

NEW ORLEANS BANK CRISIS IS AVERTED

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 6.—(UP)—New Orleans returned to normalcy today after an exciting week end bank crisis in which Senator Huey P. (Kingfish) Long cast himself in the role of hero.

Nine Injured In Week End Traffic Accidents

FIVE CRASHES REPORTED TO AUTHORITIES

FIGURES ARE RELEASED AT ANNUAL MEET

Several spectacular automobile accidents were reported in the county over the week end, nine persons were hurt and five crashes reported.

Three persons were injured at 8:45 p. m. yesterday when cars driven by Frank Kidd, 26, of 2218 San Fernando Road, and Harry Shipkey, 66, 418 North Spadra Street, Fullerton, collided head-on on Highway No. 161 near La Habra, one and three quarter miles east of the county line.

Those hurt were: Charles Deckles, 26, of 8461 1-2 Blackburn Street, Los Angeles; Alberta Whitaker, 19, 2728 East First Street, Long Beach and Mrs. Harry Shipkey, of Fullerton.

According to state officers who were at the scene of the crash, both cars attempted to pass machines going in the same direction and were practically demolished.

Motor Officer Hurt
John Turton, 37, of 1326 Martha Lane, member of the Orange County squad of the California Highway Patrol, was injured at 9:36 a. m. yesterday at Ninth and Bristol streets when his motor collided with a car driven by C. P. Campbell, 68, of 2417 Valencia Avenue.

Turton received cuts and bruises about the head and complained of an injured shoulder. He was taken to his home.

Two youths and a girl were injured at 2:30 a. m. Sunday when the car in which they were riding overturned on Orange Avenue one half mile east of the Newport road. The scene of the accident was near the Santa Ana Country club.

Car Overturns
The car approached the end of the street apparently without the driver knowing the street was not a through street. The car overturned. Victor Schmelzer, 21, of 118 North Emily Street, Anaheim, suffered concussion of the brain. Leason Pomeroi, 26, of 628 North Zoya Street, Anaheim was cut and bruised and Carol House, 17, of 109 South Van Ness Street, Santa Ana was seriously cut and bruised about the face and head.

They were taken to the Santa Ana Valley hospital where first aid treatment was given. With the exception of Miss House, the others later were removed to their homes. Her condition today was reported satisfactory.

Charles Strader, 29, of Irvine, was given first aid treatment at the Orange County hospital yesterday for injuries received when he fell off a motorcycle. He suffered a dislocated left arm.

W. H. Covell, of 337 West Commonwealth Avenue, Fullerton, suffered minor bruises late Saturday night when he was run down at Spadra road and Commonwealth Avenue in Fullerton. The car was driven by C. R. Raeder, of Sacramento.

ARCHERY GOLF GROWS
A number of private golf clubs have inaugurated the sport of archery golf, the Professional Golfers association reports.

trary, purchasing power has continued to decline during 1932, while supplies have continued to be in surplus and the results have been inevitable, especially with unrestricted shipping practices of the outside shippers.

Loose Fruit
"To salvage something out of that part of any agricultural crop which is not fit for shipment, even though it amounts to only a small per cent of the whole, immediately creates conditions that seriously interfere with regular organized channels of distribution for the commercial part of the product and our loose fruit problem is no exception to the rule. The throw-out of valencias for this territory averaged eighteen per cent of the door receipts, exclusive of house shrinkage and this amounts to 1460.6 carloads, converted to packed boxes, and we attempted to salvage 450.4 cars of this quantity, sending to the products plant 101.2 cars figured on the same basis.

Lemons
"Needless to say that the Lemon Agreement again demonstrated its effectiveness, and in spite of early maturity and short storage lived fruit and in face of a 35 per cent throw-out of the door receipts, exclusive of house shrinkage, still on an acreage basis and where production was near the average, returns have been much better than on oranges, and this same ratio has been more or less maintained throughout the entire life of the agreement. We handled 644.1 cars of lemons of 44 boxes to the car, or only 71 and a fraction per cent of last year's output, and the average return was $2.52 per packed box, f.o.b. California, as against $4.18 for the 1930-31 season. Every attempt is being made to tear down the 90 per cent control, which is the very vitals of this agreement, and the lemon grower should not be influenced, by talk of being able to ship 100 per cent of his production, to make any change in his marketing affiliation. Ninety per cent of the California lemon crop is not sufficient to accomplish the maximum in marketing possibility, and anything below that figure would mean disaster. Because of this insistent propaganda to gain acreage with unsound argument it is becoming more and more apparent to the orange producer within the exchange that he is going to have to insist on his full percentage of the shipments that move from the state periodically in order to maintain his present position, and this same thing would happen to the lemon shipper, with consequent destabilized markets, if it would become necessary to abandon the agreement.

Oranges
"Our navels were moved to market early in January following rains and showed very poor carrying qualities, with attendant low returns. The average was only one dollar and forty-six cents f. o. b. on 62,028 boxes of this variety, some of which showed the effects of frost injury. There were 5331 1-2 boxes of grapefruit and miscellaneous varieties shipped during the season, previous to and during the early part of the Valencia shipping period. The same period of cold which effected our navels had the effect of shortening the Valencia shippable from Central and Northern California and permitted the Southern shippers to begin operations relatively early although the earlier shipments from the Northern sections, some of which showed serious frost injury, had established the market on rather a low level. The market reacted to good quality from the south, however, and prices rose to the highest peak for May and early June shipments, that was reached during the season. The 1932 crop of Valencia, part of which went forward during November, 1932, consisted of 3,048,717 boxes of packed fruit and averaged one dollar and ninety-five cents f. o. b. California. This is the lowest price received since the pre-war period of 1910 to 1914 and, while it is still above the indices for general food commodity prices, is considerably less than is necessary to cover costs and carrying charges for producing another crop. In spite of predictions to the continued to decline during 1932, while supplies have continued to be in surplus and the results have been inevitable, especially with unrestricted shipping practices of the outside shippers.

Cruelty Charged In Divorce Suit
Alleging that he had called her vile names and mistreated her, Mrs. Esther Wheeler has filed suit in superior court seeking an interlocutory decree of divorce from Yeater Wheeler, Fullerton oil worker. She also is seeking custody of the couple's two children.

In her complaint Mrs. Wheeler alleges that in addition to calling her obscene names, her husband called her a "know-nothing" and made slighting remarks about her and her family.

Wheeler is alleged to have refused to give her any money and on one occasion when she took $1.50 from community funds he cursed her and made her return it. She also alleges that her husband struck and kicked her.

ROLPH CHARGES SENATOR WITH PARDON RACKET

influence or peddling pardons to prisoners or trafficking in human liberty," the governor said.

After the conviction of Dr. Card, the governor related, his wife, Mrs. Myra B. Card, was told that a pardon could be obtained "provided she would pay well."

As a result, the woman deposited $12,500 with the Bank of Italy in San Francisco, with instructions to pay the entire sum to Attorney William R. McWood, the governor charged, if the pardon were granted, "but only $7,500 if his sentence were commuted."

"Deal" Is Made
"Thereupon Mr. McWood made a 'deal' with Senator Inman whereby Inman undertook to work on Governor Stephens, and as to receive $2,500 if a pardon were granted to Dr. Card, but only $1,250 if the sentence were commuted, by January 8," the governor's message read.

"Senator Inman, however, before commencing work, required that written instructions securing his fee be given to the bank as part of the escrow. Such instructions were filed about 10 days prior to January 8, 1932.

"Senator Inman, having thus been hired to 'spring' the notorious character, began to solicit Governor Stephens for executive clemency for Dr. Card."

Finally Governor Stephens yielded to Inman, Governor Rolph continued, and granted the pardon on the condition that Dr. Card leave California and never return.

A check for $2500 was paid to Inman at Sacramento January 9, 1932, and on the same day the rest of the $10,000 was paid at San Francisco to William R. McWood, the governor's charges said.

"I charge that in so selling his political influence Senator Inman committed an 'irregularity' of that kind mentioned in the resolution appointing this investigating committee," said Rolph.

Offers Proof

"Your committee can doubtless obtain documentary confirmation of these charges by issuing a subpoena to the chief trust officer of the Bank of America National Trust and Savings association at San Francisco, requiring production of the entire file of the escrow in question," the message said.

"When Governor Richardson assumed office, he signified his protest by granting an unconditional pardon to Dr. Card, saying that if the evidence in the pardon petition was true, Dr. Card was entitled to an unconditional pardon, but that in any event California had no right to unloose its undesirable citizens on other states."

In the case of Grettenberg, who applied to Gov. C. C. Young for a pardon in 1931, the advisory pardon board recommended it be denied, Governor Rolph continued.

"The prisoner's attorney was Charles M. Street of Los Angeles, but his plea for pardon was presented to Governor Young by Senator Inman. Senator Inman also wrote to the state board of prison directors on September 22, 1930, urging favorable consideration for Grettenberg. Mrs. Ada Grettenberg of Los Angeles states she paid a fee of $200 to Senator Inman for his services."

Senator Inman represented Marco Albori of Los Angeles on his appeal from conviction, and received a fee of $500 the governor asserted.

"Senator Inman and Mr. Sherdan Downey, representing your committee, occupy law offices in common in Sacramento," the message said.

About 6 months ago, Rolph said, Downey approached Joseph H. Stephens, Sacramento banker, and Rolph appointee on the state prison board, and attempted to interest Stephens in a pardon for Marco.

"When Stephens replied that, so far as he was concerned, the case was closed, Downey then said that Albori was a man of means and that he, Downey, felt something should be done for him," Governor Rolph concluded.

"As governor of California, I demand that the aforesaid and all activities of Senator Inman in the procurements of pardons be spied up and exposed to public view and that a complete investigation be made of the 'pardon racket' which has recently been a subject of discussion in the press."

Senator J. M. Inman, chairman, target of the Rolph accusations, attempted to quiet the speaker, but Golden continued to read. Finally Sen. H. C. Jones, San Jose, and Sen. Bradford S. Crittenden, Stockton, intervened in an attempt to stop Golden.

By this time the senate chamber was in an uproar. Failing to bring order out of the situation, the committee adjourned and walked out of the chamber.

"That's all right," Golden shouted after them. "I'll be back again this afternoon."

Sheridan Downey, attorney for the committee, said: "You have mentioned my name in connection with this so-called 'pardon racket.' I want to say that you'll not only have the opportunity to read this message, but you'll also be required to produce Governor Rolph and other witnesses who will be made to prove these accusations."

Skeele's home to find the house empty and a ransom note pinned to the door.

The note, in part, read:

It will be too bad for Mrs. Skeele unless you pay $10,000 for her return . . .

"You are watched . . . in case the police are notified, we will do away with her."

The first part of the note was typewritten, detectives said, while the latter half was made up of words clipped from magazines and newspapers.

"I cannot understand why my family should have been singled out for this," said Dr. Skeele. "I'm only a school teacher, and teachers never have money."

Neither he nor his son could shed any light on the abduction. Police agreed the kidnapers probably were well acquainted with the family routine.

Dr. Skeele has been dean of the University of Southern California college of music for 35 years. The Skeeles also have a daughter, Mrs. Mary Humphries, of Fullerton, wife of Walter Humphries, an oil engineer.

The Bar association charged Judge Louderback owed certain obligations and that he arbitrarily made certain appointments to discharge them.

The accusations were placed in the hands of the house judiciary committee, and a subcommittee composed of Reps. Sumner, Laguardia and Gordon Browning visited San Francisco to conduct the original inquiry.

Testimony centered about Shortridge Jr., and one Sam Leake, former Western Union Telegraph operator and close friend and advisor of Louderback.

Leake's connection with the federal judge was never fully brought out although Laguardia sought to reveal him as a go between in Louderback receivership appointments. Leake admitted he received "contributions" in return for advice given those appointed to receivership posts by Judge Louderback.

It was charged the younger Shortridge was shown favoritism in the matter of being appointed to receivership cases, and that fees were exorbitant.

Testimony throughout was that Judge Louderback arbitrarily appointed receivers and attorneys, allowed alleged excessive fees and made numerous rulings, some of which were reversed by the federal appeals courts.

ATTEMPT ON MOTORIST IS FRUSTRATED

An armed bandit, with the lower part of his face concealed with a white handkerchief, held up the H. A. Smith grocery store, at 910 Myrtle street, at 8 o'clock Saturday night, ransacked the cash register of $15, police were told.

The bandit came in the back door at a time when there were no customers in the place. Smith turned and faced a blue revolver. The bandit ordered him to keep quiet and open the cash register. Smith complied.

After the bandit had sorted the currency from a number of checks in the drawer, he ordered Smith to the rear of the store and seated him in a chair, warning him to stay there for five minutes.

The thief turned and walked out of the back door a few moments later. Smith reported he heard a car start a short distance away and is of the opinion the man escaped in an automobile.
The bandit was wearing a dirty gray suit, which Smith said was torn and ragged.

Attempt Failed
An attempt to hold up Buddy Rehm, of 902 Orange avenue, at 9:40 o'clock last night at the Nichols warehouse on Fruit street, was frustrated when Rehm failed to stop his car for two men he believed to be bandits and when he knocked one of them off his running board when the man attempted to board the car.

Report of the case was today on file in the city police station.
Rehm reported that as he neared the warehouse, another car crowded him off the road almost against the warehouse. Two men jumped out and waved for him to stop. He stepped on the gas instead and when one of the men attempted to climb on the car, Rehm struck him and dashed away in the darkness.

BURNS STARTS TRIP TO STATE PRISON

Carl Burns, former Santa Ana bond salesman, was scheduled to start for San Quentin prison this afternoon to begin a sentence of from one to 10 years, on a charge of grand theft, in connection with the asserted sale of worthless stock.

He has been in jail here for the past two weeks after all efforts to stave off the penitentiary term had failed. The complaining witnesses in the Burns case were Pauline Weide and her father Henry Weide, both of Santa Ana. Burns will be taken to the penitentiary by Deputy Sheriff Herman Zabel, the two leaving here late this afternoon via automobile. After delivering the prisoner, Zabel will go to Sacramento on business for the sheriff's office with the California Division of Identification and Criminal Investigation. He will be gone several days.

MANY ATTEND FINAL RITES FOR PIONEER

With the chapel crowded with a host of friends, and with an impressive display of floral offerings testifying to the esteem in which he was held, funeral services for John Cubbon, 84-year-old pioneer of Santa Ana, were conducted at the Smith and Tutbill Funeral home Saturday afternoon.

Recounting his many activities in the civic life of Santa Ana during his 63 years residence here and telling of the many odd deeds he had done in his own quiet way, the Rev. W. J. Hatter, rector of the Church of the Messiah, Episcopal, praised the life of the pioneer in an address made at the services.

Music was furnished by James Nuchols, who sang several songs, accompanied at the piano by Harry Warner.

Active pallbearers were Charles Twiss, William Wallace, Dr. John Wehrly, Dr. Jesse Chilton, H. A. Crookshank, and J. G. Quick. Honorary pallbearers were James Sleeper, Ed Stafford, A. J. Visel, Max Reinhaus, E. J. Eaton, and Frank Wakeham.

Following the funeral services, interment was made in Fairhaven cemetery.

Mr. Cubbon died Friday afternoon of shock resulting from a fall in the rear of his home at 902 French street when he suffered a broken hip two weeks ago.

Known throughout the county, Mr. Cubbon had followed an active agricultural, financial, business and civic career during his 63 years of residence in Santa Ana. Few people remain alive today who had lived in Santa Ana as long as he did. He came here about a year after the city was founded.

The truck, minus its cargo of 6000 gallons of gasoline was recovered Friday, when it was found abandoned near Compton.
The sheriff's office announced it was seeking two other men in connection with the robbery.

Two men are in the Orange county hospital, one at the point of death, as the result of a fight which took place yesterday at Delhi.

Rafael Jordan, of 2309 South Main street, is suffering from knife wounds about the body. He was cut five times by Aurelio Ortiz, also of Delhi, according to a statement he made to police.

Ortiz is reported dying as the result of a broken skull, received when he was hit with an iron bar, in the hands of Ramon Corona, 30, who attempted to stop the fight between Ortiz and Jordan, police said.

Corona is in the county jail with Paul Lopez, of 1243 West First street, being held in connection with the fight and awaiting the outcome of Ortiz' fight for his life.

According to C. W. Wolford, detective and Officer J. F. McWilliams, who made an investigation, the fight started over an argument between Ortiz and Jordan in the yards of the home of Phillip Garcia. No formal charges have been placed against any of the men, pending further investigation by officers, but the two men in the hospital also are under arrest.

A 15-year old Garden Grove boy last night confessed to the Santa Ana police department that he had stolen five automobiles in and near here during the past four weeks.

The youth was arrested when he was seen with one of the stolen cars, and after questioning confessed to taking four others, according to C. W. Wolford, detective, who made the arrest. The youth is being held in the county detention home.

The boy admitted that on January 9, he took a car owned by John Mangold, of Garden Grove; January 24th, a car owned by M. H. Moss of Garden Grove; January 20, a car registered to Talkiehl Jato, of Garden Grove, Route No. 5; on January 27th a machine owned by Earl Kent of 1920 East Seventeenth street, Santa Ana and on February 3 a machine owned by Mrs. Roy Vincent, of Huntington Beach.

CLUE REPORTED IN KOESEL DEATH CASE

Classified as a clue to the murder of Mayor Fred Koese, of Anaheim, who was shot and fatally wounded on November 27, 1932, a report from Tulsa, Okla., has been received at the sheriff's office, that a man arrested there had newspaper clippings of the crime in his pocket at the time.

The man, Frank Keenan, was arrested in Tulsa several days ago when a pistol was found in his possession. Officers also found a newspaper clipping from a Los Angeles paper dated November 23, which told of the Koese shooting. Several arrows pointed from the banner on the story to the story itself.

Information regarding the Koese death was sent to the Tulsa sheriff's office today by Herman Zabel, fingerprint expert, who worked on the case here.

CONTINUANCE GRANTED AGAIN IN WATER SUIT

Presenting every water user in Orange county.
At the conference Saturday the delay was consented to for the purpose of allowing defendant cities and organizations time to prepare their answers. The party was held in San Bernardino and was called for the purpose of determining whether or not that city should remain as one of the defendants.

According to Browning, all parties are convinced that the city of San Bernardino is not involved in the spreading actions, held inimical to the water rights of Orange county. San Bernardino was made a defendant in the action because it is a member of the association directing conservation and flood control work on Lytle creek and has been contributing to spreading operations that are detrimental to that city, he said.

The suit was filed by the Irvine company several months ago to prevent water spreading on the upper Santa Ana when such spreading was declared to jeopardize Orange county's water supply. Browning said that in filing the action his company was representing every water user in Orange county.

ILLUSION:

One of Napoleon's soldiers rose to fame on the "Burning Oven" trick. A roaring fire was built in an oven... the temperature rose to 600° F. Into the oven walked the "fire king," M. Chabert, carrying several raw steaks. A few minutes later the doors were flung wide and out he stepped... safe and sound... with the steaks thoroughly cooked.

EXPLANATION:

Heat rises. When Chabert entered the oven he hung the steaks above the fire, in the center of the oven, then dropped to the floor at the side, covering his head with a hood made from his shirt. He breathed through small air holes in the floor. When the steaks were cooked he threw back the hood, grabbed the steaks, and stepped out in triumph.

It's fun to be fooled — ...it's more fun to KNOW

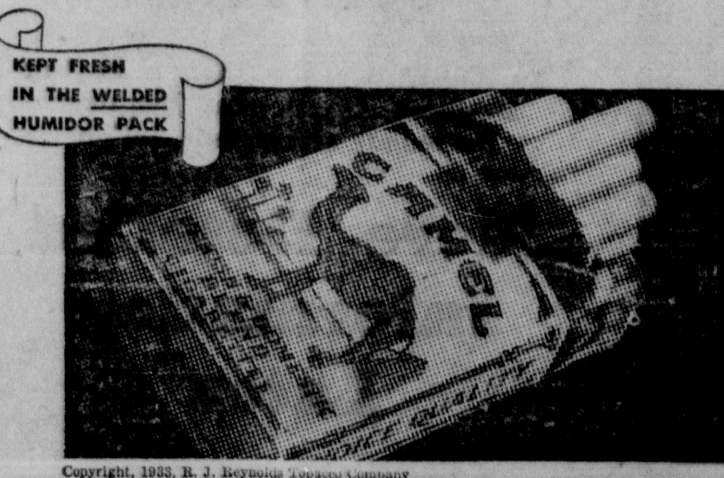

"The Burning Oven" is an old illusion which has played a leading rôle in cigarette advertising. Its modern name is "Heat Treatment."

Explanation: All cigarette manufacturers use the heat-treating process. Cheap, harsh, raw tobaccos require intensive processing under high temperatures. The more expensive tobaccos, which are naturally mild, call for only a moderate application of heat. The first Camel cigarette was manufactured under the heat-treating process. Every one of the billions of Camels produced since has received the necessary heat treatment. But remember that heat treatment never makes cheap, inferior tobacco good. It is not in heat treatments, but in more costly tobacco and fine blending, that Camels find their appealing mildness and flavor.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

You sense this quality in the mildness... the distinctive flavor... of Camels. More costly tobaccos and a matchless blend tell the story of Camel leadership in public confidence.

Try Camels. Judge them critically. Compare them with others for mildness, for throat-ease, for good taste. Key your taste to quality! Camels come to you fresh and cool... in the air-tight, welded Humidor Pack that keeps dryness outside and freshness inside.

HIGH STANDARD BETWEEN SEXES SERMON THEME

Declaring that every civilization has found it necessary to regulate for its own well-being the relations between its men and its women, the Rev. Harry Evan Owings, pastor of the First Baptist church, last night discussed "High Standards Between Sexes." This was the theme for his sermon on the series "Shall We Repeal the Ten Commandments?" and dealt with the Seventh.

He said in part: "Every civilization has found it necessary to regulate for its own well-being the relations between its men and its women. Certain customs, standards, laws, restrictions, and requirements have of necessity been set. Here we find that the Hebrews, even though a long period of their history they practiced polygamy, nevertheless set it down as one of their foundational social laws that no unfaithful act should be allowed to mar and break the sacred marriage ties between husband and wife. The dangers and the destructiveness attendant upon such violations they found had been clearly written by the finger of God not merely upon tablets of stone but upon the tablets of history and social life.

"The age-old injunction, 'Thou shalt not commit adultery' is still required for these modern days. There is still need for it to call men and women of the twentieth century to the sacredness of the marriage bond, to show us how imperative it is that those ties shall not be violated and that we shall permit no infringement upon or any tampering with that holy relationship. One feels that there is too much laxity, too much 'Tennessee' complex, too much easy-divorce-mindedness for the security of our homes and our society.

"This injunction brings up the whole matter of relationship between the sexes discussion of which is declared taboo in most social circles. Neither church nor home nor school has found an adequate way of dealing with this vital matter. But the proper information and instruction must be given our youths and maidens or they will get it from improper sources. Some of us must throw the safeguards about them by counseling and showing the reasons for strictest chastity, purity, virtue, and honor between young men and women, making clear the dire consequences attendant upon 'taking a chance' and 'having a fling'."

"We find the proper solution for this relationship in the conception of Jesus that the marriage relation is not to be on a mere physical basis but is rather a spiritual union of two lives, souls and lives joined perfectly in an eternal, abiding, indissoluble companionship. Only on this basis may home and society be stable and secure."

RELATION OF TESTAMENTS IS SERMON THEME

The sermon subject yesterday morning at the First Methodist church was "The Scarlet Line," with Dr. George A. Warner, pastor, using as his text the words found in Romans 5:10, "For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of His son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by His life."

Dr. Warner said, in part: "The Old Testament and the New Testament are related as seed to fruit as germ to product. Often times they stand over against each other by way of contrast.

"Look at two other strangely contrasting pictures. 'And the Spirit of God came upon Zachariah, the son of Jehoiada the priest, and he stood above the people, and said unto them, Thus saith God, Why transgress ye the commandments of the Lord that you cannot prosper? . . . And they conspired against him and stoned him with stones at the commandment of the king in the court of the house of the Lord. . . . And when he died he said, The Lord look upon it and require it.' "Then the second—But Stephen, being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up steadfastly into heaven and saw the glory of God; and Jesus standing at the right hand of God, and said, Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of Man standing on the right hand of God. . . . And they cast him out of the city and stoned him. . . . And he kneeled down and cried out with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge. What has wrought the change? There is but one answer: between Zachariah and Stephen there came One who said, 'Love your enemies, and pray for them that persecute you.' With His nailed hands He built the bridge across the gulf that divides them that cry for vengeance from them that pray for pardon.

"There is no wonder that the writer to the Romans emphatically declared, 'We shall be saved by His life.' God is not angry with humanity, He does not need to be placated, appeased or reconciled. Such an idea is alien to the spirit aid faith of Jesus to whom God was not a Judge but a Father, whose love never tires, never fails, never forgets, never fails. The atoning work of God did not begin at a definite date nor was it finished at a specific time. The life of God is one of eternal loving and reconciliation. 'Christ is our Redeemer because in a unique sense He is the Revealer of what God was, is and ever shall be.'"

"The atonement or at-one-ment of Christ is not something done for us long ago, but something that He is doing in us here and now. Our redemption is not transacted outside of ourselves but is the life of Christ in us—a hope of glory transforming our personality endowing us with purity and power and making us Master of the handicaps that thwart us. Whoever is discerning will catch a new emphasis. It is the gospel of the life of Christ. Herein lies the hope of religion. Christ is a leader not simply to be admired, even worshipped, out to be obeyed and followed.

"As Joseph Fort Newton so well says, 'Christianity is not a reminiscence, it is a revolution. The new Christianity must recover the whole Gospel, not simply that Christ died, but that He is alive.' He is demanding of us the same heroic adventure as He required of those who followed Him in the days of His flesh. Christians must take into their tasks, of whatever kind, His faith in God, His love of man, and the spirit and temper in which He wrought. Did He not say, 'I am come that ye might have life and have it more abundantly?' His was a great love, a great ministry, a sacrificial loyalty to the highest and the best."

COP NEEDED COPS

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Constable M. J. McCann, of the 15th ward, vows he'll never stop his auto to aid a fair motorist in distress. He recently stopped for a woman driver who seemed to be having trouble. When he did three men stepped from behind her car and robbed the officer of his revolver, blackjack and $9.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG — News Behind the News —

WASHINGTON
By Paul Mallon

GERMANY

Herr Hitler will eat no raw meat as Chancellor. They pulled his teeth privately before they give him an official position.

At least that is the creditable word reaching our officials. It is apparently believed also by the French government. His cabinet is supposed to be well controlled by nationalists and junkies. The old Von Papen sympathizers. They expect to keep him from carrying out his bombastic program.

That is why his selection caused so little stir either in Paris or Wall street. A contributing factor in the complacency of the world toward Hitler's ascendancy is the change in international psychology. A year ago the same step might have meant war. Now Germany has taken strides forward toward many Hitler objectives. Reparations have been stopped. The Treaty of Versailles is virtually inoperative. Germany has served notice she will not respect the military sections of the Treaty. She has withdrawn from the disarmament conference. In French official circles they say they would rather deal with a solid right wing government like Hitler has now than to play with a weak left wing cabinet. Hitler may fool them. . . .

SILVER

Some influential Democrats here sent a letter to Wall street this week on the question of moderate inflation through silver. They got the answer back so fast the letter doubled up on them. It was: "No" in a loud voice.

There is no indication that anything important will be done about silver for a while yet. Something may be accomplished through Mr. Roosevelt's conferences with the war debtors. The possibilities of legislation before that time are virtually nil. . . .

INFLATION

Now that the inflation drive has come out into the open some of the conservative ring leaders are weakening.

The same influential Congressmen who were saying that some sort of inflation was necessary are now mumbling, perhaps it won't be necessary. That is the result of the strong campaign being waged against inflation by a few New York banks and the few highest Administration officials. . . .

This appears to be only a minor fluctuation in the situation. The underlying roots of the matter are just where they were two months ago. They have gone down too deep to be pulled up in a hurry. The only thing that can perk them out is a very great improvement in business. You will have to reckon without that and meet the issue. . . .

ALLOTMENT

The farm gang thinks somebody is scuttling their Allotment bill. They can feel it just as plain—but they cannot locate it.

They are getting so suspicious that they look askance at each other. Loyalty of former disciples of the measure is no longer taken for granted. They would not be greatly surprised if the Senate hemmed and hawed and postponed action on the measure until next session. This hidden opposition is unquestionably seeking such delay but the despair of the farm bloc as yet seems unwarranted.

There is nothing to look forward to anyway except a Hoover veto. The bill could not possibly pass over a veto. . . .

RAINEY

Democratic Leader Rainey has again demonstrated his mental versatility—this time on the depreciated currency tariff issue.

Everybody knows how the House Republicans thrust that unwelcome issue on the Democrats. Rainey has been trying to figure out a quiet way of killing or delaying it before the House vote, February 13. This week he hit on the idea of calling a caucus. He so announced. Some hours later a check disclosed the improbability of getting the necessary two-thirds to oppose the issue in a caucus. Thereupon he called the caucus off.

He has been caught so often in varying announcements that his friends tell the story that Mrs. Rainey once said to him: "Henry, I see four statements by you in the morning papers and they are all different. Which one is right?"

SPEAKER

Democrats involved in the Speakership fight have recovered their sense of humor. Garner, McDuffie and Rainey had a little personal backslapping session the other afternoon. They want to show there are no hard feelings now.

They have had geographical mess yet to straighten out. A deal is in the making. . . .

BEER

Bogus rumors that Mr. Hoover will sign the beer bill are now agitating the Senate. There is not the slightest ground for them. They are circulated by a Republican wet Senator. He is either trying to salve his own party conscience or bring pressure on the President.

Two men who talked with Mr. Hoover have quoted him privately as saying he could not possibly sign any of the beer bills yet devised. . . .

It seems to be part of the inside Washington ritual that just prior to consideration of a bill obnoxious to a President rumors are always circulated that he will sign the bill. It is part of the usual strategy of legislators. . . .

Unquestionably such tactics get votes for a measure in both houses of congress. It was worked very successfully on the recent Philippines bill before the veto. It will probably work on the beer bill also. . . .

DIPLOMACY

The British are privately building friendly feeling here for the coming debt negotiations. The Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, held this week his first press conference in eight months. He talked fully and frankly, saying nothing in particular.

Foreign diplomats ordinarily serve cocktails at their press conferences. The British served none. An attaché explained the embassy was still under the impression that we have prohibition. . . .

NOTES

Jesse Jones from the R.F.C. has been hanging around the senate recently. . . . Senators may be in on patronage business. Nearly everyone else in Washington is nowadays. . . . The British embassy entertains less than any of the other important embassies in town. . . . After observing Huey during the recent filibuster a prominent radio writer, Robert D. Hehl, advised his friend Joe Cook the comedian to run down, take a look at Huey and then put on an imitation of him in his new show, promising it would be a riot. . . . Souvenir hunters have been stealing the "Private" signs from senatorial elevators. . . . They are getting new ones which will be nailed on. . . . Vice President-elect Garner had a good time laughing at the lampooning of the Vice Presidency in "Or There I Sing." . . . Next day he said he did not think it was very funny, but there might be "some philosophy in it."

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

INVESTIGATION

The stock market investigation has a pretty political twist. Pecora's influence as a friend of Tammany has resulted in sidetracking the insular routine and the calling of three National City officers toward the latter part of the month. This directly revives the plan to make National City squirm for its hard-boiled attitude toward the City Administration. At the same time the National City has been given several weeks to think it over. If the bank develops a more generous frame of mind you can expect the wind to be tempered accordingly. . . .

ACCOUNTING

Meanwhile Stock Exchange authorities are still busy cleaning house from within. Woolworth has finally been indicted to adopt clearer accounting methods. Allied Chemical is under pressure along the same line but is still unyielding. This development is being kept out of the public eye. . . .

RAILS

The 12 million dollar bond issue of the Cincinnati Union Terminal was the largest public offering on behalf of railroads since 1931. It had very powerful sponsorship and went over sweetly. It is significant that one of the purposes of the issue is to repay all R.F.C. loan. This is the first important public financing effort in that direction.

The success scored here may mean similar efforts on behalf of other railroad interests if the R. F. C. ceases to be corporate-minded.

The Cincinnati bonds are jointly guaranteed by seven railroads. Wall street comment runs: "Well, at least three of them are solvent."

UTILITIES

Savings banks and insurance companies are taking a lively interest in the future of utilities. They hold around four billion dollars worth of utility securities. . . .

Utility organizations left outside the Edison Institute are inclined to sniff at the Institute's claims for accounting purity. They assert that at least two of the Institute members offer financial statements beyond the grasp of Einstein himself.

There is real hard feeling between the Morgan groups and Associated Gas and Electric. It traces partly to the fact that A. G. & E. won a race from a Morgan company to get control of the Metropolitan Edison properties in Pennsylvania. The Morgan interests were buying stock in the open market—and Associated Gas slipped in by quick work.

One reason utility holding groups are in hot water is because of the high price they paid for operating properties under pressure of competition. This is at the root of many "writeups."

The Chase Bank's action in selling out its collateral against defaulted loans to Eastern Insular interests may turn out to be good news for Stone and Webster. The two organizations are very friendly.

What will probably happen is this: Chase itself will bid in the securities at auction. A little later it will be announced that Stone and Webster have been appointed to manage the properties thus acquired. A little later still—when conditions are more auspicious for floating bond issues—Chase Harris Forbes will offer publicly an issue on behalf of some Stone and Webster Corporation. Then the Chase Bank will be repaid and Stone and Webster will have clear title to some good operating utilities.

The Chase is already operating a Southern utility company through a dummy board of directors. Meanwhile Central Hanover has acquired useful New England utility interests. . . .

MORTGAGES

New York Life's declaration of a moratorium on Iowa farm mortgages is a direct result of direct action. The rough handling their representative received when he underbid a mortgage scared them

Picnics and Reunions

WISCONSIN

All former residents of Wisconsin are invited to meet for the picnic reunion, all day Saturday, February 11, 1933, in Sycamore Grove park, Los Angeles. There will be county registers and headquarters so all can find the old neighbors. There will be a brief program opening about two o'clock. All the tourists and visitors from the old home state are invited. Col. Frank H. True, president. Information may be had of C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Federation of State Societies, Hotel Alexandria, Mutual 0361.

COLORADO

President Bill Campbell, of the Colorado State society, is announcing the annual picnic for all former residents of that state to be held all day, Sunday, February 12, in Sycamore Grove park, Los Angeles, with basket dinners at noon. He promises a popular program and that county registers and headquarters will be open all day so friends may meet each other. The program will follow the dinner hour and hot coffee will be supplied for all picnicers.

"Believe me, I want a Car that's Safe!"

A CERTIFIED INTERVIEW WITH POLICE LIEUTENANT AMOS ANDERSON, DARIEN, CONN.

"I not only read about accidents... I actually see them in my work. So safety means a lot to me."

"I kept thinking about the protection for my wife and little girl in that steel body and the safety glass."

"I gave them all the Third Degree... and then picked Plymouth"

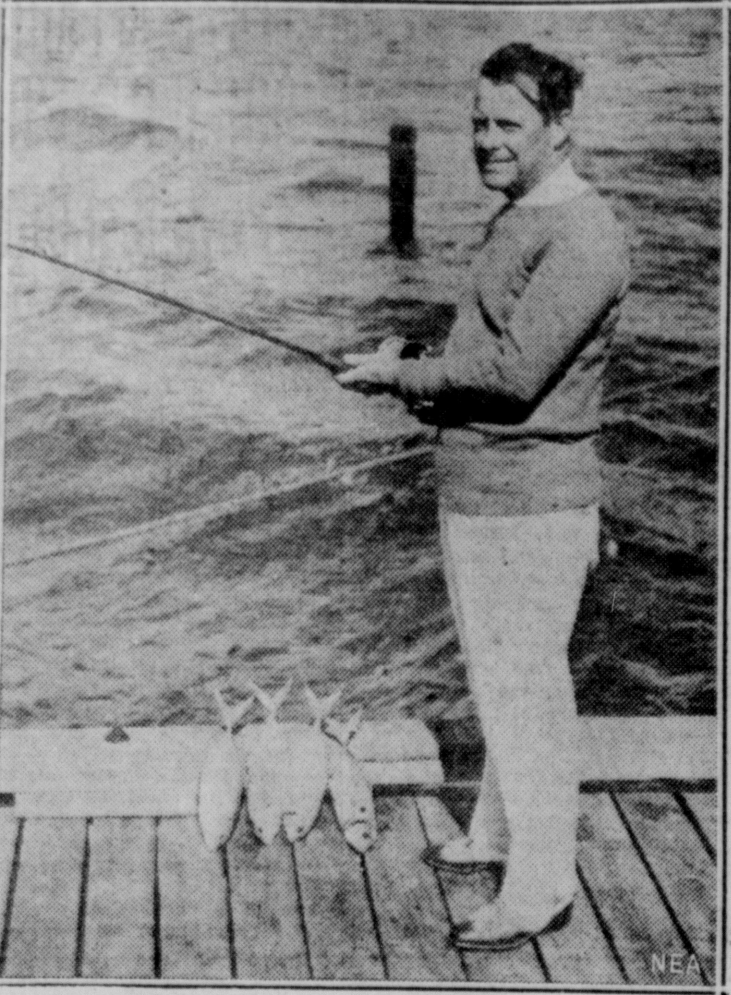

WE'RE all thinking of safety these days. As Lieutenant Anderson says: "It's a nice feeling to have a steel body between you and the other fellow's carelessness."

But safety's just one feature you get in a Plymouth... so let's pass over hydraulic brakes and the rigid-X frame.

In Plymouth you get a big, full-sized car... solidly built! You get a 70-horsepower engine... a "performin' fool" on the road, yet mighty easy on your purse, because we've

CASTS AWAY WORRIES

It's a good catch that Joseph V. McKee, former acting-mayor of New York City, is displaying as he angles off the pier at Miami. McKee has taken a vacation from his official duties as aldermanic president and is in Florida after a West Indian cruise. Meanwhile the campaign to make him fusion candidate for mayor next year continues in New York.

REMOVE OLD H. B. DANCE PAVILION

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Feb. 6. —The old beach pavilion at the beach near the municipal pier is being removed by a force of workmen under direction of Roy F. Patrick, local manager of the Huntington Beach company. The company is moving the building to add to the attractiveness of the beach front in the vicinity of the pier and plunge, the section of the beach most patronized by the public.

The dance hall has a maple floor which is being removed and stored at the Huntington Beach company ranch on Main street.

Huntington Beach Firemen's Dance Set for March 17

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Feb. 6. —The Huntington Beach firemen have announced March 17, St. Patrick's night, as the date of their annual ball. It has been customary to have the dance Valentine's night, but it was necessary to change the date this year in order to secure the services of the Los Angeles fire department orchestra. The firemen and the auxiliary are busy selling tickets for the event.

MOUTH OF CHILD BURNED BY LYE

BUENA PARK, Feb. 6. —John Parker Jr., two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Parker, was painfully burned Saturday, when he found a can of lye at a neighbors' house and put some in his mouth. The child was rushed to Fullerton for first aid. Although the burns may leave scars about the mouth, it is believed that the child's sense of taste will not be lost. The child's cries brought his mother to the scene.

HOLD FUNERAL OF MRS. P. J. PARKER

LAGUNA BEACH, Feb. 6. —Funeral services for Mrs. P. J. Parker, 74, writer on religious subjects, who died suddenly Saturday at the home of her son, C. H. Smith, foreman of the Coast News, 182 Diamond drive, from a heart attack, were held today at Napa.

Mrs. Parker was born in Missouri and came to California in 1888. Besides her son in Laguna Beach, she is survived by another son, E. E. Smith, of Oakland, and a daughter, Mrs. Chester Frost, of Martinez, Calif.

Until her coming to Laguna Beach a year and a half ago, Mrs. Parker resided for many years with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Smith, at 919 Minter street, Santa Ana. She was a devout Christian, who had devoted the past 40 years of her life to the teachings of the tenets of the Seventh Day Adventists church. She was widely known to the membership of that denomination throughout the entire Pacific coast for her strong support and writings propounding the doctrines of the late Mrs. E. G. White, founder and leader of the organization, and with whom she was acquainted personally.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 29 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid liver.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.—Adv.

ORANGE COUNTY SCHOOL MERGER IS SUGGESTED

Elementary school districts of Orange county would be merged with existing high school districts under a proposed plan now before the legislature. They would mean a consolidation of the 48 elementary school districts into the 11 high school districts.

The bill was introduced by Assemblyman B. J. Feigenbaum, San Francisco.

Primarily, it is intended to reduce the number of elementary and secondary districts, which now total 2600, to the number of high school districts, 297.

"Adoption of a large unit of school district administration is a sound method of attaining economy," Feigenbaum said. "It will result in centralization of administration and concentration of fiscal authority."

The bill sets up 297 school districts which would include all existing elementary and secondary schools which lie within present high school boundaries, together with neighboring elementary school districts which are not now within any high school district.

"Each new consolidated district would be administered by an elected board of trustees," Feigenbaum said. "To insure equitable representation of all parts of the district upon the board of trustees the county superintendent of schools is empowered to divide the district into election precincts equal in number to the number of trustees and from each of which one trustee shall be elected."

"By cutting the number of districts in the state to approximately 300, expense of districts is reduced. In addition the work of the county superintendent, county auditor, county treasurer and state department of education is lessened," he said.

County Civic Music Membership Cards Good for Concert

Civic Music association members of the Orange county group, who may happen to be in or near Visalia February 15, will be able to hear the famous vocalists, Don Cosack and Chorus upon presentation of their membership cards at the concert to be given there as a feature of the Tulare-Kings Civic Music association, according to Clarence Gustlin, secretary of the Orange county association.

"Civic Music members," declared Gustlin, "should carry their membership cards with them when traveling, since one of the unique advantages to members is that of attending, without cost, any event presented by the more than 250 organizations scattered throughout the United States."

The Civic Music plan is being adopted in more and more cities of the West, according to Gustlin, who believes that its non-profit and cooperative features appeal strongly to those who are interested in high class concerts for themselves and their communities.

In April, the local organization will present the Los Angeles Woman's Symphony Orchestra as its first season's closing event. Coe Glade, contralto of the Chicago Civic Opera company, and Maurice Zam, pianist, were heard in the preceding concerts.

BODY OF HOTEL MAN FOUND IN SEA NEAR JETTY

The body of Frank J. Zerlaut, 56 years old proprietor of the Ocean Inn at Garden Grove, was found in the ocean near the jetty a short distance from shore at Seal Beach shortly before noon yesterday.

The family of the drowned man has expressed the belief that he committed suicide. It is reported. An investigation is being conducted by Coroner Earl Abbey. The body has been taken to the A. H. Dixon funeral parlors in Huntington Beach.

Zerlaut left Garden Grove Saturday night. His wife and family, who reside on the Garden Grove highway, said that he had threatened to commit suicide on account of ill health and financial worries. When he did not return home Saturday night they notified the sheriff's office Sunday morning, and also the police of Huntington Beach.

Officers at the beach city searched for him and watched the beach for his body. Later J. R. Zoeter, chief of police of Seal Beach, phoned that the Dixon ambulance, stating that the body of an unknown man had been found in the ocean near Seal Beach. H. S. Gurlich, an engineer engaged in construction work on the Seal Beach jetty, found the body, which had been partly uncovered by the tide.

When the body was recovered it was discovered that a gunny sack filled with rocks had been tied to his waist. He apparently had waded out into the water or jumped off the jetty, it is reported.

Zerlaut is survived by his wife and two sons and a daughter.

CLAREMONT PLAYERS TO GIVE PYGMALION

The casting of "Pygmalion," George Bernard Shaw's clever comedy, and the fifth production of the Claremont Community Players' season, to be given the week of February 7-11, is practically completed, according to word received here today from Mary Blaisdell Harris, director. The cast is a talented one, headlining many well-known players and adding many new ones to the roster.

Irma M. Palmer, for many years a teacher of speech in New York City, and a student of the distinguished French artist, Yvette Guilbert, will portray the Cockney flower girl, Liza Doolittle. Playing Professor Henry Higgins, the speech expert, J. Coleman Scott of Riverside will make his first appearance on the Players' stage. Remembered for his roles in "The Cradle Song," "Green Fire," and "Little Women," Tom C. McNamee of Claremont plays Colonel Pickering, another speech expert. Alfred Doolittle, representative of the great common people, is enacted by Richard Williams, a student at Pomona college. The other roles are said to be unusually well cast.

LIST DEDUCTIONS ON TAXES

Tips Given In Figuring Income Tax

BY ROBERT TALLEY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—If you lost money in the depression year 1932 as the result of the stock market decline, had debts, depreciation, fire, flood or even burglary, you can get some deduction for these in your income tax report March 15.

But the law has not been liberalized in this respect—in the case of stock market losses it has even been tightened.

An important 1933 change is the new limitation placed on deductions for losses incurred in the sale or exchange of stocks and bonds that the taxpayer had held for less than two years, and which, therefore, are not classified as "capital assets."

Briefly, this means:

If, by the sale or exchange of such securities in 1932, you incurred losses, you can deduct such losses from your taxable income only to the extent that you made taxable gains from similar sources in the same year. If the 1932 losses exceed the gains, the excess, in an amount not greater than the 1932 net income, may be carried forward and taken as a deduction against similar gains next year.

As to losses on securities held by the taxpayer for more than two years prior to the date of sale or exchange—and which are classified as "capital assets"—there is no change in the law. Such losses are still deductible, subject to the limitation that the tax may not be reduced by more than 12 1-2 per cent of the loss sustained.

In order to claim any loss at all, though, you must have actually taken a loss in the sale or exchange of such securities. Mere depreciation or shrinkage in value of securities that remain in the taxpayer's hands doesn't count.

The new limitation does not apply to brokers who deal in securities for re-sale to customers. Government, state, municipal and foreign bonds are specifically excluded from its terms.

Here are other deductions that both individuals and corporations may claim to reduce taxable income:

Bad Debts—Debts that can definitely be shown as worthless in the year for which the return is made can be deducted from gross income. Court action as proof that the debt is worthless is not essential. Permission to deduct for a reserve for bad debts is limited to taxpayers having a large number of accounts where credit is extended over a long period.

Depreciation—This deduction must be confined to property actually used in trade, business or profession—plus machinery, etc.—and does not apply to homes. In general, it applies to capital assets the cost of which cannot be deducted as a business expense.

Fire, Storm, Theft, Etc.—Such losses are deductible only to the extent that they are not covered by insurance.

Taxes—Taxes paid on real estate and personal property in 1932 are deductible except special taxes (for street paving, etc.) that enhance the value of the taxpayer's property. The federal income tax cannot be deducted, but deduction may be made for income taxes paid to states.

Interest—As interest received is taxable, interest paid is deductible.

DETAIL FIGURES IMPORTANT

A good part of the figuring on income tax blanks comes in detailing your deductions... be sure you do it right.

Here's how the new income taxes will affect incomes of various sizes. The chart below is calculated on net income at the basic rates, taking no deductions but the personal exemption. Your tax thus won't exactly coincide with these figures even if your net income does. The chart shows how the tax increases as income climbs. Note how the single man is liable as soon as his net income goes above $1000, while the married man with three children is still exempt at $3600, though he would have to make a return. The single man at $5100 is the first to feel the effect of the 8 per cent bracket and at $6100 first to feel the surtax.

Status of Taxpayer	NET INCOME
	$1100	$1800	$2600	$3600	$5100	$6100
Single	$4	$32	$60	$104	$168	$249
Married, no children	no tax	no tax	$4	$44	$104	$145
Married, one child	no tax	no tax	no tax	$28	$88	$129
Married, two children	no tax	no tax	no tax	$12	$72	$113
Married, three children	no tax	no tax	no tax	no tax	$52	$97

This applies generally to interest paid on debts, real estate mortgages, and the like. Interest paid on behalf of a friend or relative where there is no legal obligation on the part of the payer is not deductible, the law regarding this as a gift.

Contributions—If made to an established charity organization, they are deductible, but contributions made directly to financially distressed relatives or friends are not deductible. Contributions to churches, scientific, religious and education organizations are deductible in an amount equal to 15 per cent of the taxpayer's net income.

Losses Deductible—Generally speaking, all losses are deductible if incurred in the legislature going for the first-half session.

A check of legislative expenses, not including the cost of printing the 3698 bills introduced, shows a total expenditure of $54,965. Of this the senate spent $30,643, and the assembly, $24,323.

Included in the legislative bills are the traveling expenses of the lawmakers, ranging from $66.10 for Senator Ben Hulse of Imperial county, to 10 cents for Senator J. M. Inman, Sacramento.

Other expense items included such things as $33.55 for gold-plated badges for the sergeant-at-arms.

CHURCH PRESENTS JUBILEE QUARTET

1932 Levies By Congress Are Included

taxpayer's business, trade or profession or in any transaction entered into for profit.

As for the new taxes enacted by Congress last summer in its sweeping effort to balance the federal budget, the law varies. Those that are levied on the manufacturer are not deductible; those that are levied on the public directly are deductible.

For example, an individual cannot deduct for the new 1-cent-a-gallon federal gasoline tax because the law looks to the manufacturer for the collection of this tax—even though the consumer admittedly pays it. Nor can he deduct for federal excise taxes paid on jewelry, new automobiles, tires, toilet preparations, etc., since the law levies these on the manufacturer.

But an individual can deduct the tax he paid in 1932 on bank checks, on the rent of a safety deposit vault, on his electric light bill, club dues, telegrams, telephone conversations, etc., since the law levies these on him directly.

Admission taxes to theaters, movies, ball games, etc., are deductible, but the taxpayer must be able to show that he has kept an account of the amount paid.

Auto Taxes Out

State automobile license fees are taxes and therefore deductible, as are license fees exacted by a state or city upon certain businesses.

Interest derived from federal, state, county and municipal bonds is exempt from taxation, as is interest on securities issued under the Federal Farm Loan Act. However, the interest on 4 and 4 1-4 per cent Liberty Bonds and Treasury Bonds, if owned in excess of $5000, is subject to surtax if the net income is over $6000.

As corporations are not subject to surtax, the interest on Liberty 4 and 4 1-4 per cent bonds and Treasury Bonds is exempt from federal income tax if these obligations are held by a corporation. Dividends paid by domestic corporations to individuals are not subject to the normal tax but are subject to the surtax if the net income of the taxpayer exceeds $6000.

CITIES GETTING SHORT END OF GAS TAX FUND

Fact and figures revealing what small proportion of benefit cities in California have derived from money taken from city motorists for the state gasoline tax fund, used on state highways, have been prepared by City Councilman J. L. McBride, member of the gas tax committee of the League of California Municipalities.

In a short prepared by Councilman McBride following extensive research work, it is learned that in the period from 1912 to 1932 a total of $447,000,000 was spent of county highways; $357,000,000 on state highways and $339,000,000 on city streets.

The above amounts were spent on 72,000 miles of county highways in the state, 7369 miles of state highways and 10,000 miles of city streets.

The important point is that in a single year county highways receive $15,700,000 from the state gas and motor vehicle tax; state highways $28,000,000, while cities received practically nothing, although a large percentage of the money expended was derived from city motorists, McBride pointed out.

Under the provisions of the bill which was introduced at the last session of the state legislature by Assemblyman Ted Crais of Orange county, which embodies the League of California Municipalities plan, county highways would still receive the same amount, $15,700,000 and state highways would get $22,000,000, a total of $37,700,000 less than they have been getting. This $37,000,000 is the amount which the League believes should be and is asking to be returned to cities in the state for city street purposes.

Officials of the League believe the request to be reasonable, especially because of the fine system of roads in the state which are said to need no additions at the present time and the fund used for this purpose would not be lowered enough to effect state roads.

Of the $6,000,000, Santa Ana would receive about $500,000 annually, enough to lower the city tax rate 17 cents, it was stated.

The League objects to provisions in any other alternate plans for division of the gas tax money which do not provide for a direct allocation to cities, independent of action of boards of supervisors or the state highway department.

Score Are Dinner Guests Of Frank F. Meads On Saturday

A smartly appointed dinner was the hospitable medium by which Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Meads entertained some twenty friends at their home at 2119 North Main street. The proximity of February 14 was fully realized by guests as they were directed to seats at tables elegantly decorated with the approaching Valentine holiday. Sweet peas in bouquets of red and white, with gay Valentine placecards in which this color combination was repeated, adorned the long table in the dining room, while smaller tables in another room bore as centerpieces smaller decoration identical in theme.

Contract bridge held sway in the hours following the repast, the tournament continuing until scores were ordered tallied and rewards presented Mrs. C. V. Davis, high among women players; Dr. Frank H. Paterson, high gentleman contestant, and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Mead, of Seattle, who received a guest prize.

Shoppers of the dinner courtesy were Messrs. and Mesdames Ralph Mosher, Earl S. Morrow, Charles V. Davis, Frank F. Mead, Jr., Robert G. Tutthill, J. E. Liebig, Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Clark, Dr. and Mrs. Frank H. Paterson, Mrs. Margaret D. Borgmeyer, and Mrs. Sarah J. Haddon, all of this city; and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Mead of Seattle, Wash., son and daughter-in-law of the hosts.

Valentine Breakfast Honors Birthday Celebrant

In celebration of her birthday anniversary, Miss Marjorie Knox was honored at a delightful Valentine breakfast given Saturday morning by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Knox, 1130 Lyon street.

Card games, jigsaw puzzles and a Valentine hunt provided amusement until the breakfast hour, when guests were invited to the dining room. The table was beautifully decorated with red candles and hearts, while heart-shaped boxes filled with nuts and candies served as favors at each place. A three-course menu, served by Mr. and Mrs. Knox, carried out a red and white color scheme.

Served with the last course was a pretty cake whose violet, pink and green layers proved to contain good luck trinkets for each guest, as she cut her own piece of the confection.

Following breakfast Miss Knox was led on a treasure hunt, at the close of which she found her mother's birthday gift to her, a beautiful handmade comfort.

Guests were the Mesdames Gertrude Chapman, Hazel Berge, Marjorie Tubach, Katherine Chapman, Genevieve Hanson, Eva Berge, Marjorie Knox, the honoree, and Mr. and Mrs. Knox.

Flower Decked Church Is Lovely Setting For Nuptials

Garlanded with flowers in white and the soft bright yellow of early spring, the Broadway and Walnut Church of Christ was charming setting yesterday afternoon for a wedding ceremony at which Miss Alice Johnson became the bride of Floyd H. Barker, with James Sewell, pastor of the church, conducting the solemn rites.

Guests assembled for a 3:30 o'clock ceremony, which was preceded by a delightful feature when a girls' chorus formed from young people of the church sang "Lassie o' Mine." This same group sang "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" at the conclusion of the nuptial rites.

Miss Johnson, who is the daughter of Mrs. L. Johnson, 208 West Walnut street, was strikingly gowned in velvet in one of the bright blue shades of early spring. With this she wore a modish little hat in the same color, while even her slippers repeated the blue note. Her flowers, a large cluster of sweet peas in rose hues, established a charming note of contrast.

Miss Lillie Bell Forsberg, as honor maid, wore a pretty gold crepe frock and carried sweet peas in rainbow colors. Harvey Greenleaf assisted Mr. Barker as best man.

Floyd H. Barker is the son of Mrs. Clara Matthews, 213 East Pine street, and resides in Brea, where he is with the Safeway stores. He has a home in readiness for his bride at 108 1-2 South Walnut street, Brea, where they will welcome their friends after returning from a honeymoon trip to San Diego and other southern points.

Both young people were members of the 1929 graduating class of Santa Ana High school. Miss Johnson followed her graduation with a course at the Business Institute here, and then joined the office staff of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance company, where she has been employed ever since.

Program Commemorates Washington's Birth For D. A. R. Group

Welcomed by hostesses who might well have stepped directly from some painting of colonial days, members of Santa Ana chapter Daughters of American Revolution found in the Y. W. clubrooms Saturday afternoon, a pleasant commemoration of the birth of George Washington, as observed by the chapter according to the annual custom.

The occasion was made a luncheon to which the same patriotic theme was applied, with tables gay with flowers in the tri-colors, and cherries used in garnishing various dishes in deference to the favorite cherry tree legend. At the table where Mrs. M. M. Holmes, chapter president, was seated in her colonial gown and snowy wig, the arrangement was unusually attractive, for centering the embroidered cloth was a bowl filled with vivid red single carnations, white narcissus and blue cornflowers.

Mrs. L. D. Hendrie as chairman of the luncheon committee, was assisted by Mesdames M. C. Fick, C. E. Downie, H. G. Guthrie and Calvin Rowland. Miss Nina Moring and Mrs. Fred E. Zarek had charge of the dining room where luncheon was served by a bevy of "daughters of Daughters," the Misses Alice Oliver, Dorothy Guthrie, Mildred Holmes, Mrs. John Backus and Mrs. Harold Hendrie.

Seeking the assembly room at the close of the luncheon interval, chapter members heard an interesting program after giving their attention to a few business matters. This program featured Mary Wilkes Last, of San Marino, daughter of a chapter member, Mrs. Joseph Wilkes. Mrs. Last, wearing the ruffles and pan-ties of Washington's day, was lovely both to see and hear, as she sang at different intervals on the program the quaintly naive songs of the colonial period.

"My Days Have Been So Wondrous Free," "Beneath the Weeping Willow's Shade," and a graceful little Irish song, "My First Love" as an encore number, comprised her first group. Later in the afternoon she sang the gay "Old Maid's Song," "The Nightingale," and "The Lass with a Delicate Air." Her clear soprano voice, showing careful training, and her dramatic ability combined with striking personal charm, made her appearance a double pleasure.

To enhance this, was her choice of Ethel Harwood Nelson, San Marino pianist, whose spirited accompaniment provided the proper musical background.

Miss Vivian Rogers, demurely dainty in ruffles and pantalettes, chose some of Austin Dobson's graceful poems for her cleverly presented readings, "Secrets of the Heart" and "Babbette," and concluding the program was the reading by Eleanor Young Elliott of Edwin Markham's poem written for the Washington Bicentennial.

The next formal meeting of the chapter will be on March 4 when Mrs. George Bond will receive the members in her home, 507 East Myrtle street. In the meantime officers and committee chairman were called to an impromptu sewing meeting tomorrow afternoon in the home of Mrs. Holmes, 903 North Sycamore street, to work on a layette being assembled for a family in need.

Former Santa Ana Girl Honoree in Home of Mrs. Gail Jordan

A bridge event of Saturday afternoon which honored Mrs. Horace Mickle (Frances Barr) of Los Angeles was that tendered by Mrs. Gail Jordan, who entertained 34 guests in her home at 1727 North Main street.

Decorations were in attractive vein a combination of stock and sweet peas emphasizing the more delicate flower tints, while other aspects of the party were equally tasteful.

Contract proved a satisfying afternoon's diversion, several hours passing at this game before scores were collected and prizes awarded. In consequence, to Mrs. Leland Finley, who stood high, and to Mrs. Lyman Farwell, second in the scoring.

In addition to the beautiful canvases by Laguna Beach and Southland artists which grace the studio, there was a special exhibit of Alice Gibson Hornby's floral paintings. Mrs. Hornby, who is of Burbank, has her studio in Los Angeles.

Calory total—395.

An Interesting Letter

To Ann Meredith:
Since you ask for it—here it is! Anyone who spreads out a seven day diet over twenty-one issues in a daily paper, and still expects a reader to retain interest on one meal per day, expects too much. No need now to send a personal answer—life is too short.

I will again take up the old saw, "blessed is he who expects nothing—for he shall not be disappointed."

(Signed) J. H. E.

Pallas Athene may have sprung full armed from the brow of Jove, but no diet information can hope to be that clever when circumscribed by the element of time. These daily reducing menus were designed with the thought in mind of giving a daily meal for the benefit of the many who have undergone the rigors of a reducing diet and wish to retain their new low weight. I have no apologies to make to the J. H. E.'s—these Eat and Grow Slim menus will continue to be a permanent feature of the Mixing Bowl and readers with the element of PATIENCE well developed will benefit by saving and following them.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Pineapple Whip
1 cup crushed pineapple
1 package lemon jelly
Juice of 1 lemon
1-2 cup sugar
2 egg whites, beaten stiff
1 cup heavy cream
Pinch of salt

The directions for making lemon jelly call for two cups of liquid. Let one cup be pineapple juice, the other water. Make the plain jelly and let stand until it begins to jelly. Whip it until it is foamy, add the pineapple and leave for ten minutes, then whip in the stiffly beaten egg whites, and last the whipped cream and pinch of salt.

Pour into a pan and chill in the freezing chamber or directly on ice. Half an hour before serving take it away from the ice and let it soften enough to be very jelly-like.

To the two egg yolks add 1-2 cup sugar, 1 tablespoonful cornstarch. Beat well. In a double boiler heat 1-2 cups milk, add the egg part and stir until as thick as cream. Beat in a rounded tablespoonful of butter while the sauce cooks, then chill well. Whip to a froth before pouring over the whip.

The whip serves ten generously, and the calories, including the sauce, total 230 per serving.

Despite its light fluffiness this dessert is a gay deceiver, for excessive indulgence in its luscious charms can wreck the most Perfect Sixteen!

Tuesday: A reader has asked for a recipe for home-made bread. ANN MEREDITH.

Battle Looms In Election Of Water District Directors

4 CANDIDATES ENTER RACE AT LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, Feb. 6.—Trenches are being dug for what promises to be one of the most bitterly contested political battles in the history of Laguna Beach, when citizens go to the polls March 28, to elect five directors to govern the Laguna Beach County Water district. Citizens who have held several meetings at the home of Joseph S. Thurston have declared that a full ticket will be placed in the field against the present water board.

Four of the five have agreed to the use of their names. They are former Mayor James E. Bishop, Dr. Montrose Lestrang, partner in a dance hall, and Don Helwig, past commander of the American Legion post. Charles A. Kalchen, the fifth man named, has announced that he will not be a candidate, but attended the meetings.

The names of several independent candidates have been mentioned, among them Leo B. Wilson, grocer. The incumbent directors, who will run on one ticket, are former Mayor Thomas A. Cummings, now president of the water board, Mayor Frank B. Champion, both of whom have retired; Joseph R. Jabraus, lumber dealer; City Clerk George W. Prior and Justice of the Peace C. C. (Gavy) Cravath. Cummings, Champion and Jabraus have been directors of the water district since its organization in 1925, having been elected in that year and in 1929. Prior was appointed in 1928 and elected in 1929. Cravath was appointed last year to take the place of the late John L. Brickets, who was president of the board.

Dr. Lestrang was appointed last year by former Mayor Bishop as an additional director, but the board refused to recognize him and this action was upheld in a decision handed down by Judge G. K. Scovel in the superior court at Santa Ana. Dr. Lestrang was appointed city judge by the city council following the requested resignation of Judge Cravath. Judge Lestrang admitted that he will be a candidate. He gave as his reason a desire to know personally how the affairs of the water district are conducted and to see if economies may be effected. Dr. Lestrang was a member of the civil service commission in San Bernardino that was credited with many civic reforms.

The election on March 28 will serve as a primary. Only those candidates who receive more than 50 per cent of the votes cast will be declared elected. If there are not five who receive a majority, there must be a run-off election three weeks later. In the two previous elections the five directors were chosen without recourse to the run-off.

Among those in the group who are opposing the board are Henry J. Weeks, who was a write-in candidate four years ago and was defeated; City Engineer Frank P. Gowan, Charles A. Kalchen, a retired plate glass manufacturer of Detroit, who came here to live about six years ago, and N. E. West, prominent in the county as a fighter for tax reductions.

HONOR P. T. A. PRESIDENTS IN GARDEN GROVE

GARDEN GROVE, Feb. 6.—The Garden Grove Grammar School P. T. A. observed Founders' day recently, when past presidents of the local organization were honored guests. Mrs. R. W. Marvin of Anaheim, Fourth District president, gave the history of the P. T. A., and discussed pending school legislation.

S. R. Fitz, superintendent of schools, spoke on "The Safety of Children," explaining the new law being enforced by the highway patrol that all children getting off school buses should go around the bus before crossing the street. Miss Lucille Harbottle stressed the idea that the teachers were unable to aid the children in obeying this law without the help of the parents.

Mr. Fitz introduced the following past presidents: Mrs. H. A. Lake, Mrs. W. T. Kiven, Mrs. Dwight Magill, Mrs. Elva Hunt, Mrs. J. G. Allen, Mrs. L. A. Trickey and Mrs. William Dale.

The Washington school orchestra played several selections under the direction of W. G. Axworthy. The fourth grade mothers, teachers and pupils presented a stunt portraying scenes from the life of Abraham Lincoln. Mrs. M. R. Sprinkle, dressed in negro costume, sang "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia."

Accompanied at the piano by W. G. Axworthy, Jean Holt and George Donahue told the story of Abe Lincoln. Others taking part were Miss Marcella Carmichael, Miss Marcella Turner, Connie Hodgson, David Sprinkle, Leroy Hutsler, Billy Ferris, Billy Coe, Betty Smith, Della Mae Hamilton, Edna Hebstreit. The play was written by Mrs. Emmett Smith and the scenery was made by Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

The judges awarded this stunt 25 points. At the end of the school year a prize will be awarded to the room presenting the best stunt at P. T. A. meetings.

The pictures were awarded to Mrs. Mary Holman's sixth grade of the Washington school and Miss Gladys Summerfield's first grade of the Lincoln school.

Mrs. Ethel Evans presided at the tea table, and the following fourth grade mothers and teachers served the birthday cake and tea: Miss Marcella Carmichael, Miss Marcella Turner, Mrs. Ernest Young, Mrs. Ferris, Mrs. Charles Simpson and Mrs. Emmett Smith.

NEWPORT BEACH, Feb. 6.—In order to increase the market for fresh fish, and aid unemployment, which is more prevalent among the fishermen than any other class resident here, a campaign pointing out the health and food value of fresh fish is being undertaken by the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce and other groups of this city.

DEATH CALLS FORMER JUDGE IN BEACH CITY

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Feb. 6.—Word has been received in this city of the death of Harry H. Stewart at Ulrich, Mo., the funeral being held in that city Saturday.

Stewart was city judge in Huntington Beach at one time. He built three modern cottages in the vicinity of Olive and Fifteenth streets which he later sold. His wife, Mrs. Nettie Stewart, who survives him, also was prominent here, being a former member of the Woman's club and the P. T. A. and active in work at the First M. E. church.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart were guests in Huntington Beach last year in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. White on Alabama avenue at Frankfort street.

The committee agreed that the policy of the police department in apprehending and prosecuting flagrant and dangerous violations of the law should be encouraged. The report stated "salaries and wages paid to municipal workers are not excessive but, on the contrary, are extremely reasonable for the services performed."

Members of the committee were E. L. Holloway, chairman; Mrs. P. W. Smith, Dan Mulhearn, J. C. Henderson and David G. Kline.

The council appointed Dr. B. F. Mock as assistant to the county health department to cooperate in cases of communicable diseases. He will serve without pay.

It was stated that $52,000 in taxes had been received, 18 per cent of the taxes being delinquent. Council members decided to hold a special meeting for a discussion of welfare matters, following suggestions that the log cabin work be discontinued and that city employees' salaries be cut in order to provide work for jobless people.

SAN CLEMENTE CITY EXPENSES DECLARED LOW

SAN CLEMENTE, Feb. 6.—The committee of five appointed to make a survey of the city government with the view of recommending possible economies made its report at the city council session Friday night. In summary, the report stated that "the city government is being operated within its income and with probably as low a cost as is possible under conditions which surround it."

Regarding the parks and playgrounds department, the committee stated that "the use of recreational facilities, particularly on the part of San Clemente property owners, should be encouraged, and we recommend, if possible, that some arrangement be worked out whereby taxpayers can make use of the golf course, beach club and the fishing accommodations, without cost, up to the amount paid by them for taxes."

The committee agreed that the policy of the police department in apprehending and prosecuting flagrant and dangerous violations of the law should be encouraged. The report stated "salaries and wages paid to municipal workers are not excessive but, on the contrary, are extremely reasonable for the services performed."

THE TINYMIES

The cubs just loved their milk and bread and very shortly Duncy said, "I think you two are little pigs. Just see the way you eat!" "I try to feed you from a spoon, but I will stop it pretty soon, if you don't sit up straight and try to be a wee bit neat."

"The milk is dripping from your jaws and it is smeared upon your paws. I've never seen such careless bears. How hungry you must be."

One bear let out a little roar, as if 'twas begging for some more. Poor Duncy asked, "What's the use?" You both are beyond me."

"Oh, shucks, lad, let them have their fun," the hunter said. "Just wait! I'll run and get some more milk for them. Let's be sure they have enough."

Then, to another one he said, "You get another loaf of bread. I must admit it's fun for me to watch the two bears stuff."

The two bears soon jumped to the ground, and then began to waddle round. "Why, they're so full they can't stand up," said Duncy with a grin.

"Two quarts of milk they've put away and that is plenty for one day. I'll bet, when night-time comes, they will be ready to turn in."

Then Duncy said, "Before it's night, I'm going to give you both a sight. The hunter told me I could use some of his hunting clothes."

"He has some that are much too small, but that won't bother me at all. I'm going to dress the cub bears up. How they'll look, goodness knows."

"I'll gladly help you," Windy cried. And then the two lads went inside another room. The bears went, too, and soon they all came out.

The bears were dressed up, fit to kill. It seemed to give the cubs a thrill. The other Tinnies welcomed them with quite a merry shout.

WHAT'S GOING TO HAPPEN TO LABOR?

Must the machine stand as the symbol of the workingman's despair? . . . Technocracy warns of millions more without jobs, but Senator Wagner sees a way out

By FLORA G. ORR

IF, by the year 1945, 40 men with machines, working eight hours a day six days per week, can produce as much as 100 men accomplished in the same length of time in 1915, where is dear old Prosperity Corner and Increased Purchasing Power?

This isn't a riddle with a catch in it. Neither is it just a simple little mathematical problem, it seems. For labor leaders, engineers, employers, statisticians and statesmen are worrying their brains over this question night and day.

Theoretical science also steps in at this point and soothingly remarks that scientific research and the development of machines should not be made the symbol of the workingman's despair. Because, states the savant, the fruits of research properly distributed will bring happiness to all mankind in the end.

"It is wealth, not poverty, which is depressing and crushing the United States," declares another wing of the progressive school of thought. "The community must organize to control the machine age or it will consume us in one of the most senseless holocausts of history."

Many persons are studying with interest—and many are busy attacking—the findings of that group of engineers in New York, directed by Howard Scott, which has labeled itself "Technocracy," and which has just about concluded that we must organize on a new social and economic basis, with "unit energy" as our yardstick instead of the price system.

PRICES, say the engineers, rule the world with the necessity of making profits, and since profits are dependent upon quantity of goods brought into existence, it is easy to see how we come to have overproduction and chaos.

This group of technologists has predicted that within two more years, if we drift along as we have been going, we shall have 20,000,000 unemployed, instead of the estimated 12,000,000 of today. It predicts, furthermore, that unless we abandon our present economic system we are headed for catastrophe.

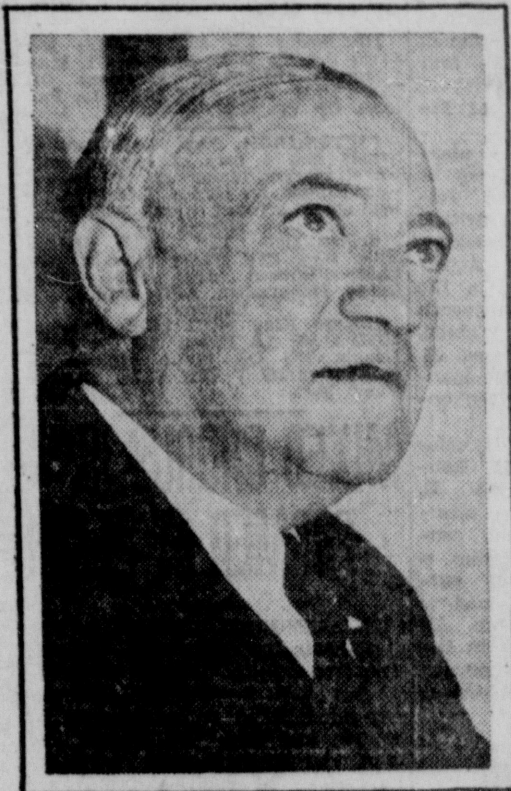

Senator Robert Wagner of New York, leader in unemployment relief legislation, is convinced, however, that there is no need to organize a new social and economic system. The one we have, he maintains, is plenty good enough, if we will but solve the problem of distribution of wealth.

Senator Wagner has several features in his program to accomplish this end. The 30-hour week, distributing employment and granting the universal leisure which should be available to all under a machine age—these are but part of his plan, he says.

The absolute elimination of child labor, making sure that children are kept in the schools until they are 17 or 18 at least; unemployment insurance; old age pensions; these are other parts of his set-up which he considers very important.

"THERE are 2,000,000 children at work today," he states. "The big bulk of them are 16 and 17, but one-third are less than 16, and 235,000 are between 10 and 13—mere infants. Their work is displacing that of the adult family provider and is, in every sense, a social and economic loss."

"Untrained as these kids will be a few years hence, and uneducated, they will be the first to Senator Robert F. Wagner, leader in unemployment relief legislation, who does not believe we need to organize a new social and economic system.

feel the shock of the next depression, big or comparatively small."

Old age pensions are so economical when compared to the cost of maintaining poor farms and asylums, says Wagner, that it seems strange there should be any opposition to them. Likewise, the removal of the aged from the ranks of industrial workers will leave more work available for those of active years.

"I was a young senator in the New York legislature when I first advanced my ideas for a workman's compensation law," says the senator. "Industries of the state were at first opposed. They called me a dangerous radical. They did not appreciate that such a law made better workers and would be of advantage to them."

"It is interesting to review our experience with this law in New York State. Employers have installed safety appliances right and left, industrial accidents have been tremendously reduced, and of course, the better safety record a business man has over a period of years, so far as accidents to his workers are concerned, the lower his premium payments year by year."

"OF course, you understand that the scheme for unemployment insurance also presumes that the better the record for continuous employment in a factory, the lower the owner's premiums will be.

"Another vital part of my program is to keep wages up, 'way up, giving labor a much greater share in the profits than heretofore has been granted. This, in itself, without any 'soak the rich' taxation, distributes wealth and enables new businesses to begin, which, as their wheels begin to turn, call for new workers to keep things going."

"You see, we have simply got to face the fact that we must make life secure, comfortable and decent for the average or forgotten man in this country."

"Why can't we do that? We have the wealth, the resources, and the consumers. We just need important readjustments in our manner of looking at life and labor, and we can do it."

As proof of the fact that under our drifting policies of the past three years we have been getting nowhere fast, Senator Wagner reviewed a few statistics.

IN 1929, there were about 8,900,000 bread winners in factories, each drawing a pay envelope from a payroll of 12 billion dollars per year.

In 1933 40 per cent of these factory workers, or about 4,000,000, have no jobs. The 60 per cent still working were being paid from an annual payroll of only about four and one-half billion dollars.

This means that for every dollar paid out in 1929, only 40 cents is being distributed today among the 60 per cent still with jobs. Even with the slight improvements noted last fall, total factory wages in October, 1932, were still 27.8 per cent lower than in October, 1931.

From July, 1931, to July, 1932, the families aided by charity doubled in number. Deposits in savings banks and postal accounts dropped three and one-half billion dollars in one year. There was a net closing of six and one-fourth million savings accounts between the dates of June 30, 1931, and June 30, 1932.

The Red Cross alone furnished flour relief to 3,583,831 separate families up to Sept. 3, 1932, after Congress had granted donations of excess wheat stocks held by Federal Farm

Board agencies. It is estimated that the people of the United States have as a whole, during the last year, used up 14 per cent of all that they had heretofore accumulated and laid aside for their old age and non-productive years.

In construction work, two and one-half million are normally employed. Now at least 55 per cent of these are out of work. For every dollar paid out to workers in this line in 1929, only 25 cents is going out today. This means at least a 50 per cent reduction in wages for those still with work.

SENATOR WAGNER looks thoughtful as he tries to visualize a future in which his ideals have become realities.

"The resistance to the ideas which I am trying to promote is very strong," he remarks. "It comes from those who still have some considerable wealth and position and who fear that shorter hours for labor, stringent child labor laws, unemployment insurance and old age pensions may somehow take from them some of what they still hug tightly to their breasts."

"Why can't they see that unless they accept some such program as this they stand in imminent danger of losing everything?"

Frances Perkins, industrial commissioner of New York, and the first woman to be seriously considered for a post in the cabinet, has outlined a program for unemployment relief very similar to that so long advocated by the New York senator.

Like Senator Wagner, she favors the 30-hour week, the abolishment of child labor, and the establishment of a nation-wide system of employment bureaus.

These national bureaus, the New Yorkers maintain, would furnish us with unemployment statistics now so badly needed. If we knew just who is out of work, what his former employment has been, and why he lost his job, says Wagner, we could formulate more effective plans right along for dealing with our labor problems.

MISS PERKINS urges that workers should be trained to be more versatile so that they can turn from one form of employment to another, if necessity arises. She calls this development of latent abilities, "increased vocational training."

Turning from the notions of Senator Wagner and Miss Perkins to those of Ethelbert Stewart, former chief statistician of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, however, we are presented with a new viewpoint as to what is fundamentally wrong with the world.

Stewart in his years of work for the government compiled and analyzed employment figures every day and thought deep thoughts. He favors the 30-hour week, unemployment insurance and all the rest of the forward-looking program, but he does not believe that all these reforms, put into effect, will by themselves turn the trick of creating a happier existence for the worker.

"THERE is never any industrial reason for a panic," he says. "The panics we have known have been money panics. Today, however, we do have a situation wherein the advance of machinery has augmented a money panic."

He hopes that we can emerge from this depression with a determination not to let our selling structure get so top heavy as it did in the past.

"One of the worst features of our 1928-29 boom was the high cost of selling," he explains. "It still costs more to sell an automobile than to make it. Electric refrigerators and washing machines have sold at higher prices than they should bring had they all been made entirely by hand."

"Installment buying was a bad feature of that boom also. If I had my way, I would abolish all laws for the collection of debts. That would do away with installment buying, and a good thing it would be, too. The good old system of paying as you go is sound economics."

ARREST HOTEL COOK FOR THEFT OF AUTO

Fast work on the part of John Stanton, chief of police of Tustin, last night recovered a stolen car and at the same time caused the arrest of the man who took it. N. E. Combs, of Sixth and B streets, Tustin, reported that his car had been taken from in front of his house. Stanton immediately communicated with Chief of Police Harry Comber of San Clemente, and a few minutes later the car, driven by Clifford Oakland, 28, cook, of the River hotel, Seventh street and Central avenue, Los Angeles, drove into San Clemente. He was promptly arrested.

Today in the Orange county jail Oakland said he would waive his preliminary examination on a charge of grand theft and "take what is coming to me." The car was not damaged.

Requisitions for additional clothing to be distributed to needy families in the area cared for by the Santa Ana chapter of the American Red Cross had been sent to headquarters in San Francisco today, it was learned.

Officials of the local chapter do not know how much clothing will be received here, and do not expect the articles to arrive and be ready for distribution for several weeks.

The Red Cross warehouse, where distribution of flour and other goods has been made for several months, has been moved from Fifth and Broadway streets to 108 West Fifth street, in the building formerly occupied by the Santa Ana Times.

The room formerly used, which was donated by R. B. Newcom, has been rented, necessitating a change of address. The new quarters were given to the Red Cross for use by the John McFadden family.

STATE BROTHERHOOD ELECTS LA HABRA

At the closing session of the fifth annual convention of Federated Church Brotherhoods of California, held in Long Beach, Ira E. Weide, La Habra, was elected secretary. G. C. Baldwin of Pomona, was named president; E. R. Long, Bakersfield, first vice president; L. H. Hendran, San Diego, second vice president; and W. B. Neugle, Santa Paula, treasurer.

During the Saturday night and Sunday sessions that marked the close of the convention the brotherhoods represented took stands for international disarmament, temperance and world peace.

Continued activity in politics by members of the brotherhoods and all churches was urged by Lt. Gov. Merriam. "Let your influence be felt," he urged.

Last Rites Held For S. A. Pioneer

Funeral services for a pioneer resident of Santa Ana, Mrs. Mary Arthur, were held from the Smith and Tutill Funeral home Saturday afternoon with the Rev. Harry Evan Owens, minister of the First Baptist church, officiating.

With her husband, Mrs. Arthur had come to Santa Ana when there were five houses in the city. She had moved to Ariona, however, and died in Mortmar, California, and she was buried there.

She is survived by her husband, R. W. Arthur, of Santa Ana; three daughters, Mrs. May Bates, of Douglas, Arizona; Mrs. R. R. Reed, of Santa Ana; and Mrs. Pearl Wilson, of Long Beach; and one son, R. W. Arthur, of Camarillo, Calif.

ARREST SAILORS ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Four sailors, all members of the crew of the U. S. S. Colorado, at San Diego, were arrested on liquor charges at Tustin yesterday afternoon by Chief of Police John Stanton, and D. D. Adams, the latter a member of the California Highway Patrol.

Joseph E. Jenkins, driver of the car, was booked at the county jail on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, and others in the machine were each charged with being drunk. They were: Charles Mackey, 31; Stephen J. Miller, 29, and Art A. Snyder, 27. The quartet will probably be given a hearing in Tustin late today.

SINCLAIR LEWIS DRAWS ANOTHER CHARACTER

Carol Kennicott, Arrowsmith, Babbitt, Elmer Gantry—characters drawn by Sinclair Lewis in his earlier books—all of whom have become familiar, not only to the reading public, but also to the general population, has another added to the list. In "Ann Vickers," Sinclair Lewis has drawn a picture of the social reform movement which bares the whole inner workings of society as it affects the poor and the outcast. A dreary and dismal picture it is. The aim of Sinclair Lewis is to shock the most of us out of our smug complacency, and the superficial belief that all is well with the world.

To be sure, all of Sinclair Lewis' characters are not contemptible. Arrowsmith surely was not; but the background against which Arrowsmith was set was very contemptible. Ann Vickers has her lapses. Underlying her life aims, however, there is a noble spirit of consecration to the interests of the poor and the outcast which is most praiseworthy. To read a book like this last one of the Nobel prizeman is to see what is wrong with our social system. For the masses of the people, it will do what a hundred scientific treatises prepared by the greatest students of research cannot begin to do.

We know what the novels of Dickens did in the middle of the last century to correct the social abuses of the England of that time. Oliver Twist called attention to the inhuman conditions of orphan homes. The schoolmaster, Squeers, in Nicholas Nickleby, has become a living character whose like we shall probably never see again. We know what Uncle Tom's Cabin did for the slave. Much could be said about other stories which became mighty agencies for reform.

This is the assumed function of Sinclair Lewis. He feels it to be his business to lay bare, and to ridicule and denounce and exorcise, the festering sores and the truculent hypocrisies of his time. "Ann Vickers" will not be pleasant reading to those who desire to live their lives in ivory towers, or who want to be soothed with bedtime stories. But the story will be arresting and inciting. That is what Sinclair Lewis designs the story to do. As such, Sinclair Lewis is doing his bit—and it is by no means a small bit—in making a diagnosis of our social life which must precede any plan to effectively cope with its problems and defects.

THE STEEL DIVIDEND

The passing of a large part of the dividend on U. S. Steel, preferred, is the best illustration we have yet had of the extent of the present depression. It is the first time for 32 years that this dividend has been so drastically cut. Hitherto, U. S. Steel, preferred, has been looked upon as reliable almost as a United States bond.

It is with no desire to add to the business gloom already existing that attention is called to this matter. It merely serves to point out two things. The first is, that liquidation of the boom of 1925-29 has not yet been completed. The second is, that great plants capable of producing most efficiently become terrific liabilities when they cease to be a going concern. We have pointed with pride to our productive capacity. It has been the marvel of the world. But it all makes for disaster when there is no demand for goods.

With steel under 20 per cent of capacity, it means that over 80 per cent of its plant is idle. That 80 per cent represents capital investment. It represents large overhead expense. And consequently, it means mounting deficits. The spread between production and consumption has been too great. We are learning,—indeed, we have already learned,—the consummate folly of piling up capital investment by reducing consuming capacity. This folly has been practised all along the line. If this depression teaches only one thing—that we build production machinery in vain unless we divide more equitably the produce of industry—we shall have learned the most valuable lesson that has been so effectively illustrated in the depression.

The time has long since come when we have quit fooling ourselves by building upon hopes. The next few years will be crucial years. We still entertain the conviction that an awakened people can cope with the situation when they know the worst. We are not poor. We have not been smitten by an "Act of God." We are the victims of our own greed and our own folly. Wise men and just men can and will find the way out. That is our hope and our encouragement.

NORTH DAKOTA DID NOT CHEER

A nation-wide publicity was given to a resolution introduced into the Senate of the state of North Dakota proposing secession from the Union. The press reports stated that a loud applause went up when the resolution was read. One of our national weeklies exploited the incident in its weekly radio program, which gave it even greater publicity.

Now we are told the Senate, so supposedly libeled, has made a pronouncement that no such thing happened, and calls for a correction of it in the press, and on the part of the above-mentioned weekly. The pronouncement has been generally noted in the press of the country; but like all such corrections it will not go as far as the incident which calls for correction. The correction has not the news value of the original incident. In spite of the correction, millions of people, perhaps, will continue to believe that an effort was made to get North Dakota to secede from the Union.

We suspect that there is this much color to the original report. The gentleman introducing the resolution made a rousing speech when he presented it. He called attention to the wrongs suffered by the farmers of the country, and especially the farmers of his state. His fervor undoubtedly struck a responsive chord in the minds of many of his colleagues, and it is more than likely that some of his sentiments were applauded.

President Taft was once quoted as saying he was very much disturbed at times by the false or misleading statements made concerning him and his public acts. For a time he felt it necessary to make corrections of these statements and acts. Then it dawned upon him that such corrections did not get him very far; and he finally made up his mind that if he could keep his mouth shut overnight, everybody else would have forgotten it too. That is not such a bad policy. Perhaps it would have been a better policy for the Senate of the sovereign state of North Dakota to have forgotten about the misrepresentation, for, so far as we have been able to learn, very few people carried it in their minds after the next newspaper came out with other matters more important.

ONE OF THE FINE ARTS

The novelist, Kathleen Norris, was interviewed in New York, where she and her husband are enjoying a vacation. In the course of the interview, Mrs. Norris disclaimed any illusions about the literary quality of her work. "Some critics wonder in print why so many people buy my books," she said, "what they find to like in them. I wonder myself when the public will tire of them."

"But I'd get nowhere at all if I tried to do something in the style of Willa Cather, for example. A talent for the fine, chiseled care of a masterpiece is simply not in me. And if I started trying to write masterpieces I'd ruin what story-telling skill I have."

Her statement would completely disarm the critics, had they been in arms against her. Mrs. Norris writes good wholesome, moral stories and her honesty regarding her work is winning.

The common sense which makes many of her writings particularly worth the time of a young person was exemplified in the interview when she said that she and her husband work all morning, she writing as much as six or seven thousand words. Then they meet for lunch.

"We have an agreement that no one shall speak at lunch until we have had at least some food. My husband is nearly always tired from his morning's work and I'm under strain, too."

When to keep still! Now there is something worth learning—and the young should learn it. Did we hear someone say something about the pest who wants to converse happily before breakfast?

We never could sympathize very much with those people who complain of the individuals who sing in the morning bath, or whistle before breakfast, for the companion who wants to converse, who tries to drag one into a dialogue before the morning coffee, is so much worse.

Bolivia's Side
Oakland Tribune

Declaring that Paraguay's "pretensions" in the Chaco come out of a conviction that Bolivia cannot defend her sovereignty there and that "separated by a vast desert and ferocious savages from the populous centers of her territory she would be compelled to relinquish the territory," Dr. Enrique Finot, Bolivian Minister to the United States has presented his country's side of the controversy to the world.

The Bolivian viewpoint, he says, is essentially Judicial. It has the bases of colonial titles (records of the Indies, royal charts and acts of viceroys, Presidents and Governors) which acknowledged the region as belonging to the jurisdiction of the Real Audiencia de Charcas, now Bolivia, and as a part of the Government of Chiquitos. The Jesuit missions of this province, which spread to the very heart of the Chaco, were placed by royal decree under the dependence of the bishopric of Santa Cruz de la Sierra.

Paraguay on the other hand bases her claims on the occupation carried out by her Government during the colonial period of certain spots outside the territory now in dispute, and which, after the war of independence, were found to belong to the Argentine Republic.

Paraguay also claims to have occupied the territory subsequent to the war of independence by taking advantage of the favorable geographical position and trying to make of usurpation a title of possession and domain.

It is true that in previous efforts to settle the question by treaty Bolivia has ratified while Paraguay would not. She has proposed and Paraguay has refused.

Five Flying Years Accomplish Much
Riverside Enterprise

Commercial air passenger transportation in the United States really began in 1927. At that time such service in this country was so far behind that of Europe that it was the ambition of airmen merely to achieve something comparable. Today they would laugh at such a goal.

Americans do a huge amount of night flying; European air lines have almost none. They do not need it as we do, for no single country there has anything like the distances to cover that we have. Five years ago airports were excited by the arrival and departure of two planes. Ten passengers in the course of a day were phenomenal. Such an airport now is calm about 22 regular planes, 200 or more passengers a day, and arrivals and departures on schedule on many different routes.

Speeds have developed from 90 miles an hour to 120 and more. Safety has increased tremendously. Most passenger planes are equipped with two-way radio sets, enabling pilots to know conditions all along their routes. Effort is now concentrated on making quieter cabins, reclining seats, serving hot meals in the air, and so on. With all these improvements, the cost has been brought down close to railroad fares.

It is a fine record for five years of activity. It raises wonder and speculation as to what progress the next five years will achieve.

That Long-Delayed Elopement

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

LINES BY A DOUBTER

Although E. Allan Poe,
As you probably know,
Used to get so he'd actually totter,
I think his best rhymes
Were produced in the times
When he largely subsisted on water.
I am far from a dry
But one cannot deny
That deep and consecutive thinking
Which results in a name
That is lauded with fame
Is rarely accomplished while drinking.

O. Khayyam who wrote
Rhymes for tipplers to quote
Was ardently fond of the flagon,
But I'm sure his best lines
In the praise of old wines
Were penned when he rode on the wagon.
His humorous muse
Is a cure for the blues
And mildly inductive to laughter,
But I certainly think
That he slung smarter ink
When sobering up the day after.

Whenever you hear
Of a hard or a soft
Who cannot be driven or goaded,
But is sure to bring fame
And renown to his name
As soon as he's pleasantly loaded,
Because his great mind
Cannot stand a hard grind
Unless he has drink to relieve it,
Do not gasp in surprise;
If you really are wise
You will calmly decline to believe it.

A MERE I. O. U.

Apparently this country did go to war for a scrap of paper, after all.

PARAGRAPHS

By Robert Quillen

Huey would be the hope of the nation if our trouble had been caused by a shortage of talk.

Let's see; the purchasing power of the people is decreasing, so we must increase commodity prices.

Maybe it would be better to have none but big banks. The R. F. C. can see big ones.

Maybe the boys could agree on a sales tax if they slipped in an amendment to make the Government pay it.

Yet one can't help feeling sorry for anybody dumb enough to foreclose and take a farm.

A SPORT SUIT IS ONE WORN BY EVERYBODY EXCEPT THOSE ENGAGED IN THE SPORT.

Darn quantity production. Fifty million ideas in stock and not one that will fit.

A lot of people who can name the new Cabinet now won't be able to name half of them two years later.

You can say this for Judas. If he had sold his countrymen millions in worthless bonds to gain 3 pieces of silver, he would have hanged himself.

You'll see. When statesmen finally agree on a way to save the world, the first step will be to ask Uncle Sam.

You can't blame everything on machinery. Tammany's machine provides 148,000 jobs.

What we need is the spirit of 1776. It got so tired of taxes that it made the taxer wish he hadn't done it.

CHIVALRY: THE ALIBI A MAN USES TO SOOTHE HIS VANITY WHEN HE DISCREETLY LETS A WOMAN HAVE HER WAY.

A scientist tells us that most of mankind is mad. "Mad" has two meanings, but he's probably right either way.

Could it be possible that the way to clean up a mess is to undo what we've done.

The world may be in a mess, but it's nice to have something that Freud can't blame on sex.

Chinese and Japanese are related. And for the first time in history, poor kin are doing what they've always longed to do.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

THE SEAMLESS VESTMENT

The other evening I began a discussion before a thousand or more bankers of New York City with the following statement:

"If any American banker, superior or subordinate, ever entertained the notion that finance is a game apart that can be played in disregard of the swirl of political, social and economic forces around it, none is left to think so today."

It is important, I think, for all of us, as well as the bankers, to realize that the problem before us is not a monetary maladjustment in this or that minor section of our life and enterprise, but a basic sickness of our civilization. Not an incurable sickness!

Not a malady the causes of which are too obscure for identification and treatment.

But a general sickness nevertheless! With the passing of every hour, the increasing interdependence of the political, social and economic factors of American life is more impressively underscored.

The civilization which physical science and industrial technology have produced on this continent is a mechanism so delicately balanced and so sensitively interdependent that the whole of it must work well if any of its major parts is to work well.

Nature has not failed us! The industrial system has not fallen down on its job of quantitative production!

It is obviously and solely a breakdown in social management from which we are suffering. Social management has to do with the interrelation of the varied parts and processes of a nation's life in contrast to the expert management of its separate parts and special processes.

And it is clear, I think, that the impasse in which economic America today finds itself is more the result of a breakdown in the management of its relationship than of failure in the operation of its several parts.

We have, in fact, been superbly successful in the technical execution of our separate enterprises, but we have manifestly failed so to relate these separate enterprises as to produce the single result of a stable and satisfying civilization.

One cause of this failure I shall identify tomorrow.

CLEARING UP

"I get along with Betty first until it is time to clear away the playthings. Then the trouble starts. She sits on the floor and cries, 'I can't, I can't. Of course I tell her she must. Then there is a scene that ends in a spanking and the whole evening is spoiled.'"

Betty is two going on three. She plays herself ragged so that when clearing up time comes she is weary. Clearing up is harder than taking out. The game is over and it is the old story of paying for a dead horse. Still, Betty must learn to pay her way.

Three years, and under, is a bit young for hard work and to a little child this is hard work. We have to think ahead and prevent the trouble. First keep an eye on what is brought out. It is a mistake to allow a child to empty a toy closet on the floor. He can never get it back again. Limit the amount that is brought out at a time. If one toy is put aside it must be at once returned to its place. The second one is not to be brought out until that first one is in place. This helps a lot.

Then stop the play in time for clearing up. Let the child stop, take a drink, relax a minute. Then send him to put away his things. If he has only a piece or two he will have no difficulty. If there is a whole set of blocks scattered about he needs help. Cut the job to the ability of the child and remember that he is not as energetic at the close of the game as he was at the start.

The older child who leaves his room in a whirl in the mornings, who never hangs up his hat and coat, never knows where his things are, needs to be trained again. Teach him to open his bed, open his window wide, hang up his night clothes and place his slippers and robe away before he gets his breakfast. Once you establish that routine you have made a long stride toward teaching him order and cooperation. The next step will be easier.

Of course he has a hook and a shelf for his clothes and his books. A sharp lookout when he comes in from school will keep him up to the hook and the shelf. It takes that sharp lookout morning and noon and night to instill this habit of order. That sounds hard but it really takes but a few minutes daily once the idea has been set. When children get the idea of neatness, of putting things they have used in their places promptly, home is very much more peaceful.

Disorder is tiresome. Order makes the atmosphere restful and brings serenity of spirit. That spirit is worth working for and its effect on the character of the children is well worth the steady persistent effort it costs.

Not long ago a mother brought a child to my office because the youngster was fidgety and nervous in the extreme. "We can't live with her. We're all through. Tell us what to do with her." We found she was neither sick nor well. Every organ in her body was healthy yet she seemed to hate herself and everybody else. Going into her home we found it resembled a shell hit house. Nothing was where it ought to be and regularity of any sort was conspicuous by its absence. Once order was established the child bloomed like a young tree. Make no mistake. Order counts.
